After spending seven years and an estimated $100 million trying to get the Wankel rotary engine in an American car, General Motors Corp. has given up. The Japanese automaker, however, is not giving up. The end of the project came in a three-paragraph statement Tuesday that said the light-weight engine can't match the fuel economy of a similar-size reciprocating engine and still meet clean air standards.

GM began working on the engine in 1970 and later introduced it in the 1975 model Chevrolet Monza. It dropped the idea because of fuel economy concerns prompted by the Arab oil embargo.

Only the Japanese-built Mazda now is sold with the Wankel rotary engine. Even that automaker is now emphasizing conventionally powered small cars despite statements the initial rotary engine still has a future. Toyota-Kojo, the Japanese manufacturer, reportedly is working on a rotary-powered engine.

While many improvements were made in many areas of rotary engine technology, our rotary engine does not demonstrate the potential for low emissions levels and fuel economy—equal to those of current reciprocating piston engines," GM said in its statement.

"We will continue to monitor publicly reported developments in rotary engine technology, pointing out that its advantages of smaller size and lighter weight remain especially attractive," GM said.

It was the premier of a great deal of power from a small package that attracted GM's interest in the engine. GM signed a $20 million licensing agreement in 1970 with Audi-NSU and Wankel of Germany and Curtiss-Wright. By mid-1974, GM felt the engine was sufficiently developed to introduce it in a new line of small cars — the 1975 model Chevrolet Monza series.

But the Arab oil embargo of late 1973 already had triggered a new interest in fuel-efficient cars and a report by the Environmental Protection Agency labeling Mazda's rotary-powered cars "gas-guzzlers" cut sales by the Japanese automaker to near nothing in this country.

After the report was issued, GM decided against using rotary engines in the Monza — a move believed to have hurt sales of the small car designed to accept a rotary engine.

The Wankel engine replaces the traditional pistons with a single triangular rotor.

Evans seeks Blaine funds

BOISE — Gov. John Evans this morning asked the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Small Business Administration to declare Blaine County a disaster area and make federal aid available.

In letters to the federal agencies and President Carter, Evans cited prospective crop losses, high unemployment and a drastic decline in business revenues in the county due to the drought.

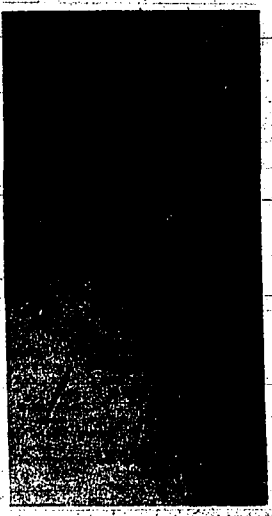

Unemployment, he said, stood at 27.5 per cent in February, more than double the 13.4 per cent unemployment rate in February 1976.

Revenues of Sun Valley Co., the county's largest employer, declined from $4.7 million last winter season to $3.5 million this season, and other businesses have experienced comparable declines, he said.

Evans cited estimates that only 10 per cent of farmers who rely on the Big Wood River will receive water this irrigation season.

"We cannot wait until our citizens have been forced to liquidate their assets before giving them assistance," he wrote Carter.

Steve Leroy, the governor's press aide, said that if the agencies declare disaster, several types of special emergency, low-interest loans will be available.

Garments off shelf

By VALEZ BIRD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Managers of a number of Twin Falls stores selling children's clothing say garments treated with Tris, a flame-retardant chemical linked to cancer, have been removed from shelves and stored.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission last Thursday halted sale and production of children's sleepwear treated with Tris.

However, the commission returned by a 2-2 vote to recall the 120 million children's Tris-treated garments already sold.

The Environmental Defense Fund said it is considering asking a federal court to expand the scope of the ban in such a way that every consumer who bought a Tris-treated garment could get his money back.

Although the commission refused the recall, it did approve a semi-recall. If a garment has not been washed (washing supposedly rinses most Tris from the fabric), consumers would be allowed to return it to the store for a refund.

Most managers of Twin Falls stores reported that Tris-treated clothing still on the shelves had to be stored.

An exception, Van's Department Store, was not carrying any Tris-treated garments. Manager, Bob Van Engelen, said the store stopped stocking the sleepwear when it was publicized earlier that Tris could cause cancer.

Doris Woodland of the Watermelon Seed said she called the manufacturer of Tris-treated garments and was told to store them and await further government decision. Woodland said so far she had not had any customers try to return garments treated with the flame retardant.

Managers at Sears and Penney's also reported that clothing treated with the flame retardant chemical was being stored to await further government decision.

Manager for the 55th March said the store's Tris-treated clothing was being returned to the company.

Only one store contacted had not checked stock to see if Tris-treated garments were still for sale.

Manufacturers of children's polyester sleepwear have relied mainly on Tris to meet federal flammability standards. Tris is not used in cotton and nylon garments.

The American Apparel Manufacturers Association has objected to the ordered recall, saying that perhaps 20 million garments still on retail shelves and in warehouses created an injustice which will drive some companies out of business.

Corder will admit lesser charge guilt

By BOB ZUCKERMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County Sheriff Paul Corder, charged with the felony of mishandling public funds, has agreed to plead guilty to a misdemeanor, failure to keep proper accounts.

Corder's attorney and the case's special prosecutor announced today the sheriff will plead guilty next week to the misdemeanor charge which carries with it a maximum of six months in jail and a $300 fine, in exchange for dismissal of the felony charge.

"I have no intentions of leaving office and I'm glad it's over with," the sheriff said this morning.

See earlier story p. 5

When asked if he thought the case had been resolved fairly, Corder said, "I put it like this: I never have felt I was guilty of any crime, but I feel this saves (tax and money for the taxpayers and saves time and money for everybody concerned."

In a brief statement released Tuesday, the attorneys said they "believe that this action will save Twin Falls County several thousand dollars in witness and attorney expense and save Sheriff Corder, his family and supporters expense and personal distress."

Corder's attorney Lloyd Webb said he thinks the misdemeanor charge "covers the situation precisely, and I think he is guilty of failing to keep records as that statute requires."

Webb and special prosecutor Leon Smith said they had agreed not to comment further on the case.

In their statement, the lawyers said they expected Sixth District Judge Arthur Oliver, Pocatello, would come to Twin Falls next week to hear Corder's plea. He is then expected to consider sentencing.

Twin Falls County Prosecutor Frank Dykas said he thought attorneys' agreement is "an equitable resolution of the case." The resolution of the case "will further improve" relations between the prosecutor's office and the office of the sheriff, he said.

Last October, former County Prosecutor William Hollifield charged the sheriff with failing to keep and turn over on a quarterly basis about $1,700 as is required by state law. If convicted of that charge, Corder faced up to five years in jail.

The money was collected as fees for use of sheriff's office copying machines during the nine years the sheriff has been in office, the complaint said.

County auditors' records show the sheriff turned in about $1,200 in copying machine funds for the first time in July, 1976. Statistics compiled by an independent auditor showed about $1,700 was collected as fees for use of the sheriff's office copiers during the nine years the sheriff was in office.

The roughly $500 discrepancy has not been cleared up.

During a preliminary hearing in the case last December, the prosecutor added the charge that sheriff falsely signed out his saying he'd turned in all fees from his office at the end of five different quarters.

The prosecutor presented sworn written statements signed by the sheriff which said all fees collected in the sheriff's office for the five quarters had been turned in.

The defense attorney argued "everyone well knew" the statements did not refer to sheriff's office copying machine fees.

In December, Magistrate Judge Robert G. Newhouse, Boise, ruled enough evidence was presented at the preliminary hearing to order the sheriff to face all charges in district court.

Later, Judge Oliver, who was appointed to hear the case after local judges disqualified themselves, dismissed the five perjury counts. At the request of Special Prosecutor Leon Smith, Oliver later agreed to change the location of the trial to Pocatello because publicity of the case had made it too difficult to pick an impartial jury here. The trial had been scheduled for next month.

SHERIFF PAUL CORDER ... case now misdemeanor

TF '4 points' plan flayed

By BOB ZUCKERMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — More than 200 persons attended the public hearing on the controversial "North Four Points" plan Tuesday night, a hearing marked by bitter complaints from those living near the intersection where changes are proposed.

Store owners near the intersection of Blue Lakes Boulevard, Shoshone Street and Addison Avenue charged the plan to close the south turn lane on the five-legged intersection would reduce their business. Some residents of Ninth Avenue, who will see an estimated 12 times as much traffic flow down their street under the plan, charged the increased traffic would ruin their residential area.

State transportation officials called the hearing to gauge public opinion on their plan to close Blue Lakes Boulevard at the five-legged intersection now commonly known as North Five Points.

Under the plan, traffic which would normally travel south on Blue Lakes would be rerouted southwest on Shoshone Street and then southeast on Ninth Avenue back to Blue Lakes.

And Anderson, who said he was the owner of Pay-Less Self Service Shops located near North Five Points, said he had never been notified that Blue Lakes Boulevard would be closed.

He said recent improvements at the intersection had decreased his business and said closure of Blue Lakes would make the situation worse.

Max Humphreys Sr., operator of Maxie's Pizzeria, said the proposed road closure would lessen business at his restaurant too. Persons will not be able to find the restaurant as easily if they have to zig-zag back-and-forth on other streets rather than traveling straight south on Blue Lakes, other store personnel charged.

John Rittelle, 238 Ninth Ave. E., said he could see "no rational reason" for the proposed closure and rerouting of traffic in front of his house.

"My residential area is going to go from 900 cars a day to 12,000 cars a day," he said. "I would strenuously object to anyone saying this does not totally destroy the residential area."

Roy Brown, who said he owns property on the southeast corner of the North Five Points intersection, said he was "convinced there were alternatives."

Brown said he knew of one five-legged intersection in Phoenix, Ariz., that handled some 98,000 cars per day. "Why can't we do that here?" he said.

Highway department officials estimate only about 35,000 cars will travel through North Five Points in 1976, he said.

Drought shifts power flow

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — In a dramatic turnaround caused by the drought, California is shipping more electricity to the Pacific Northwest than it receives in return.

But California charges the Northwest substantially more money for its power than the Northwest charges. In some cases, the California power is 10 times as expensive as the power shipped southward.

Energy flowing north along a huge "interline" transmission system from Los Angeles to the Dulles, Okla., exceeded southbound electricity by 221 million kilowatt hours in March, according to Doug Dawson, Intertie scheduling manager for the Bonneville Power Administration.

"Even in 1973, when we had a drought, the net on the interline never turned around" over a month period, Dawson said. He said this was the first time since the intertie started operating in April 1968 that imports exceeded exports.

One reason for the rise in imports, he said, is that the BPA accepted 217 million kilowatt hours of electricity as "storage" from a California utility.

By using this power now, BPA was able to save water needed to generate electricity. When the California-utility needs the power, BPA will release the saved water and return the 221 million kilowatt hours of energy.

A more dramatic change this year has been the drop in sales of "non-firm" electricity to the Southwest. This non-firm power is sold, when available, in contrast to "firm" power which is guaranteed for delivery.

In a normal water year, the Northwest has substantial amounts of hydroelectric surplus power for sale.

Last year, in March, Dawson said, the Northwest sold 2.5 billion kilowatt hours of this non-firm power to California.

This March, he said, no non-firm power was available to send down the intertie.

In February, as well, no surplus power was sent down the intertie. Instead, during February and March, Northwestern utilities purchased more than 100 million kilowatt hours of non-firm power generated by oil-fired plants in California, Dawson said.

The surplus power generated by oil-fired plants was expensive, costing about 31 mills per kilowatt hour. A mill is a tenth of a cent.

That compares to only 3 to 3.5 mills per kilowatt hour which the BPA charges California utilities for its surplus power, sent south. The charge varies by season. (Continued on p. 13)

CIA Africa blunders hit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Stockwell, a CIA agent who resigned and made accusations of mismanagement and corruption in the spy agency, is talking to the Senate Intelligence Committee, a spokesman said today.

"We have been in contact with Jim," the committee spokesman said of John Stockwell, who resigned from the CIA Sunday.

The Washington Post meanwhile published a 2,500-word open letter Stockwell wrote to Adm. Stansfield Turner, the agency's new director. It accused CIA officials in Africa of incompetence and the agency of mismanagement in general.

The spokesman would not say whether Stockwell contacted the committee or if it was the other way around.

Stockwell said he headed the CIA's ill-fated Angolan Task Force in late 1975, adding that he felt the agency is making the same mistakes today in Zaire.

In Angola, U.S. support went to the two losing factions in a three-way civil war. The winning, pro-Soviet side, was supported by at least 10,000 Cuban troops. In December, 1975, the Senate cut off funds for covert operations in Angola.

When the adventure began, Stockwell said, "I and many other officers in the CIA and State Department thought the (U.S.) intervention irresponsible and ill-conceived... intervention was a blunder."

However, Stockwell wrote Turner, "I know you are attempting to generate token support to help Zaire meet its crisis; that you are seeking out the same French mercenaries—the CIA sent to Angola in early 1976. These are the men who took the CIA money but fled the first time they encountered heavy shelling."

A CIA spokesman said Turner has not "formally" received the letter and was willing to see Stockwell, "but we couldn't find him. We called his parents in Texas that if he calls to please let us know."

Olds bond $1 million

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Michael Andrew Olds wanted for murder in Oregon, was held today under $1 million bond in connection with the abduction of three New York residents from a McKees Rocks restaurant.

Olds also was sought for the abduction Thursday of a Hazleton woman, Mrs. Grace Davis, and for two killings in Washington and Oregon.

After making an agreement to give the kidnaper, believed to be Olds, getaway time, Mrs. Davis at airport drove him to Brigham City, Utah, where she left him at a bus station.

She then drove back to her Hazleton home before calling police, as she had promised the kidnaper.

The bond, believed to be the highest ever demanded in Allegheny County, reached the $1 million mark Tuesday when McKees Rocks District Justice James Russo arraigned Olds on $500,000 bond for an additional charge of kidnapping at gunpoint in the Monday night incident.

Olds, of Walla Walla, Wash., was accused of forcing Mrs. and Mrs. Peter-Juliano of Albany, N.Y., and their son to accompany him from the McKees Rocks Shopping Plaza to Pittsburgh. He then exchanged shots with pursuing police before he was captured in heavy evening traffic on Pittsburgh's North Side.

Olds, 34, was arraigned Monday night on charges of aggravated assault, recklessly endangering another person and firearms violations. He also was arraigned before District Magistrate Robert Meinert on charges of kidnapping, felonious restraint and firearms violations filed by McKees Rocks police.

He was remanded to the Allegheny County Jail pending a hearing next Tuesday morning in McKees Rocks. His bond from both of those arraignments totaled $500,000.

Discussions between Oregon and Pennsylvania on the return of Olds to Oregon started immediately after he was taken into custody near Pittsburgh.

"We are currently awaiting information from the Pennsylvania authorities on whether they will defer their prosecution and allow Olds to be returned to OREGON," Frederick Bennett, Umiltia County (Ore.) district attorney, said.

Olds reportedly said he would not fight the extradition.

Arnold Svancara

BURL — Arnold Svancara, 70, Buhl, died Monday in a Boise hospital after a long illness.

Born Jan. 10, 1907, at Wilbur, he married Carmen Decker at Postville on June 3, 1943.

He had lived in Oregon and Nebraska as a boy and came to Idaho in 1918. He lived on the Salmon Tract, in the North Fork of the Snake River.

Survivors are his wife, Buhl; three sons, Richard and Thomas Svancara, both Buhl; and Ted Svancara, U.S. Army, Ft. Ord, Calif.; three brothers, Victor Svancara, Buhl; Ralph Svancara, Blackfoot; and Otto Svancara, San Jose, Calif.; two daughters, Rosalia Bennett, Paele Grove, Calif., and Alice Molander, West Lynne, Ore., and two grandchildren.

Funeral services for Mr. Svancara will be at 2 p.m. Friday at the Farmer-Chapel. Final rites will be in the Buhl West End Cemetery.

Heavy exchanges of shell and machine-gun fire also were reported between Palestinian and rightist positions along the central and eastern sectors of the 60-mile border. One battle reportedly broke out on the rocky hillsides between rightist-held Ain El-Bel and guerrilla-controlled Bint Jbeil.

(In Tel Aviv, Israel Foreign Minister Yigal Allon warned Tuesday night that Israel will not tolerate stepped up Palestinian attacks on "friendly" Lebanese villages near the border.)

The Palestinians, who have easily rolled over Christian positions, halted their week-long offensive in the south after a long meeting between guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat and Syrian President Hafez Assad last weekend.

Palestinian sources said Assad, who wants to preserve a rough balance of leftist-rightist power in Lebanon, asked Arafat to call off the offensive.

But, they claimed, the rightists continued shelling and the guerrillas had "no choice but to answer."

Border shelling, clashes continue

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Palestinian guerrillas and Israeli-backed Christians fought artillery battles today in a half a dozen villages along the Israeli border, according to reports from the area.

Local officials said both sides used mortars, small missiles and heavy artillery in the fighting along Lebanon's southern border.

Reports said Palestinian guerrillas attacked and captured the rightist-held village of Deir Mimas, two miles from the Israeli frontier.

Palestinian and rightist officials in Beirut would not confirm the reports, which also claimed the Syrian-controlled guerrillas of the Saika organization spearheaded the leftist push.

Some of the few inhabitants left in the shell-battered southern villages said the artillery duels, which sent heavy charges slamming into the towns' tiny stone houses, started briefly Tuesday morning. But the respite was brief, they said.

Documents passed

N.Y. Times Service LOS ANGELES — A federal agent said Tuesday that a 34-year-old Californian had admitted passing the contents of thousands of documents to the Soviet Union over a two-year period.

The documents were reportedly from his former employer, TRW Systems Inc., one of the Central Intelligence Agency's principal sources of clandestine reconnaissance satellites.

Testimony and government allegations at the opening of an espionage trial for the former TRW employee, Christopher J. Boyce, indicated that there had been a large leakage of data about some of the country's most sensitive intelligence-gathering technology and suggested the existence of substantial loopholes in CIA industry security procedures.

Boyce, it was alleged, and a friend, Andrew Daulton Lee, who will be tried separately, took $70,000 from Soviet agents in Mexico City and Vienna to photograph documents that Boyce borrowed while operating a teletype-encoding machine used for transmitting messages from TRW to CIA headquarters in Langley, Va.

Strike set by dockers

N.Y. Times Service NEW YORK — The International Longshoremen's Association said Tuesday that its members would strike seven major ship lines at 12:01 a.m. Thursday in a dispute over contract demands and the handling of containerized shipments.

The strike was expected to have its major effect on the Port of New York, where the shipping companies designated as targets carrying on extensive loading and unloading operations of shipments.

Rebate death seen

NAMPA (UPI) — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, said today he thinks Congress can kill President Carter's $50 tax rebate.

McClure made the prediction at a meeting of the Nampa Chamber of Commerce government affairs committee.

"We will do away with any $50 giveaway and replace it with a permanent tax cut of between four and 14 per cent for taxable income brackets below $20,000," McClure said.

The senator said, "Everyone realizes that a 'quick fix' $50 check won't really help the family budget for very long and will only raise inflation."

They do realize the potential of a permanent tax cut something they can count on for years to come and more of the paycheck which they can keep rather than sending it to Washington."

TWIN FALLS — Parents Without Partners will hold a general membership meeting Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Idaho Power Building. For more information call 733-7638.

An autopsy performed Tuesday in Idaho Falls failed to determine the cause of death. Further laboratory tests are being conducted.

Evans said the body appeared to be that of a Mexican between the ages of 20-30. He said there were no identifying papers on him.

The Bingham sheriff's department said they were taking two persons to view the body to see if they can identify the man.

The labor camp, where the body was found, is not in use since the ranch is just beginning to hire help for the season.

FDA bans sacchar

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration said today it is considering giving permission for saccharin to be sold as a drug, but still intends to ban it in diet soda pop — the sweetener's widest use.

The agency said FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy would reveal details of the saccharin ban at a Thursday news conference.

Allowing saccharin to be sold as a drug, either prescription or non-prescription, would affect less than one quarter of the amount used. The agency indicated it has no intention of going back on its plan to ban food uses of the last remaining approved artificial sweetener.

The biggest use for saccharin — about 75 per cent — is in diet soft drinks. It also is used in diet foods, drugs and cosmetics. Only a fraction

Keep farmland free from urbanization

Local aquarium shop owners, car dealers, haberdashers and saloonkeepers have something in common.

All their businesses depend upon the southern Idaho farming industry.

Exactly how much money area farmers generate for other businesses recently was pinpointed by a University of Idaho agricultural extension service economist.

Neil Rimbey discovered that every dollar earned by a farmer generates more than $2.50 in additional income for other businessmen in an agricultural community.

More significantly, Rimbey discovered that as farmers grow more prosperous, so do businessmen.

For example, a $1' an acre increase in the profits earned by farmers translates into $14 of additional revenue per acre for businessmen not in farming.

These statistics offer hard, economic proof that Idaho's cities and counties should diligently work to protect the agricultural lands from casual subdividing and urban sprawl.

Call it land use planning if you like. But the essential point is that protecting agricultural land from urbanization helps businessmen in town.

Consider these points:

Farmlands already are developed in the sense that they don't need water lines, utility poles or sewage treatment facilities installed like new subdivisions would need.

Agricultural lands aren't costing taxpayers as much as urban expansion would cost.

Furthermore, an influx of new people to live in houses built on agricultural land would require new kinds of industry.

There are few industries as clean or as unobtrusive as agriculture.

Changing farmlands into subdivisions not only reduces the economic impact of agriculture, it forces communities to look for new, less aesthetic industries.

And as economist Rimbey showed, agriculture can keep businesses growing.

A $10 an acre increase in farm profits which generates multi-million dollar increases in urban business revenues translates into only a five cent per hundredweight increase in the price of potatoes.

That's five cents.

That small increase in farmer's market prices will generate millions more for business without a single additional acre of agricultural land being disturbed.

Encouraging expansion of the agricultural sector of the economy is the best way to keep Idaho cities nice places to live.

Protecting existing agricultural lands from urban sprawl keeps taxes down, and preserves an economic asset unequaled by any other industry.

IS IT HARD TO SABOTAGE A MINUTEMAN LAUNCH SITE?

NO

By TOM TIERE

DAHLEN, N.D. — When the Air Force established the Minuteman Intercontinental Ballistic Missile system in the early 1960s it did so with security in mind. Both bombs and launching crews were placed underground; defended from intrusion by topside guards and by mechanical protections designed to be impenetrable.

But are they impenetrable? At a time of increasingly bold terrorist activity, the word "impenetrable" is being questioned.

The answer to both questions may be no. In a visit to a Minuteman site near this small agricultural community, I have learned that under some circumstances installation security is nonexistent.

I am not referring to conventional circumstances. It appears the Air Force is correct when it says the missile locations are safe from any direct terrorist attack. The facilities are surrounded by fencing, as well as small arms protection, and full reinforcements are merely a radio call and helicopter hop away.

What's more, even if attacking terrorists were to get into a compound, they would not be able to breach the underground control chamber. The elevator leading to it can be frozen (remotely) by the launch crew; and, finally, the chamber itself is sealed off by a three-foot thick steel door that is indeed beyond forcible entry.

Yet what if the terrorist assault were unconventional? For example, what if a lone thief were to pose as a student doing research, or a citizen on a readily available Minuteman tour, or even a newspaper reporter? Here is where security may fail.

In my experience it did fail, and I had been a terrorist I could have shaken the free world.

What I did was more than what thousands of other civilians have done over the last decade: apply for permission to visit one of America's 1,000 Minuteman (III) installations. I applied by phone—others, ranging from Boy Scouts to scientists, have done it mostly by letter. Permission was given to me, almost immediately.

All that was required by way of identification was a social security number, and something indicating my newspaper affiliation. Anyone can get a social security number, of course; each of the Hanafi Muslims who terrified Washington last month had them. As for my affiliation, I "proved" it with a faded, 12-year-old I.D. card.

From here on there was no more checking. I was cleared. No one actually had any idea who I was, or for that matter for whom I worked, but I was taken directly to launch control station "Golf-Zero," a site having responsibility for 10 missiles, each of which carry more destructive power than was released in any war in history.

I was given a thorough safety briefing on the upstairs level of Golf-Zero. Then without a search—and with no further need of identification, I was taken 60 feet into the earth to the launch control chamber, the thick door of which was wide open for welcome.

Capt. Bill Pollard greeted me, and showed me around. We talked pleasantly of the mission, of the procedures, of safeguards and duty requirements. With him in the control room was Lt. Mark Honrath. The lieutenant is 24, a post Vietnam soldier as are many at the Minuteman sites; he conducted a panel exercise for me.

At length I interrupted the routine questioning to raise a more pertinent matter: I had a black bag with me, I said, and I wondered why it had not been searched. Supposedly it contained a camera, but realistically it could have contained a gun or a bomb. I told them I was a reporter, I said, I would have no penetrated the site.

My revelation was sobering. The smiles of my hosts faded. A sergeant, who had immediate responsibility for my visit, said he'd been told the bag was a camera case, that it had been cleared as such, so he hadn't thought to check further. Neither the captain nor the lieutenant made excuses; they knew they had been negligent.

In subsequent conversations I was told that even if I had been a terrorist, and taken over the site, I could not have launched a missile. The procedures and codes are far too complex, for one thing. Then too, the crew said that if I forced them to fire their effort would be immediately negated by another launching station.

Press, government battle over 'secrets'

London Economist News Service

"Congress shall make no law... abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press." On those few words of the First Amendment to the Constitution ultimately rest the remarkable rights and powers of the American press. It has more effective freedom today than the press plays other country.

It can comment uninhibitedly, even mistakenly, on public persons; it can publish what the government wishes to keep secret; it can investigate suspected wrongdoing regardless of court proceedings. It can do those things under the Constitution; but all the Constitution has to say on the subject is that one grand, Delphic statement in the First Amendment.

It is the judges of the United States, and especially of the Supreme Court, who have defined the freedoms of the press. By way of interpreting the First Amendment, they have created a complex structure of law to which they are still adding.

In the years of Congress's decline, before Vietnam and Watergate, the press took up much of the duty of scrutinizing the executive. Indeed, it became customary to speak of the press as the fourth branch of government—a misleading cliché, since the press is in theory and must remain in practice outside the formal political institutions. In any event, increasingly aggressive reporters and editors—and the defensive reactions of officials, sincere or otherwise—led to legal confrontations.

The judicial focus has shifted recently in a fundamental respect. The guarantee of the First Amendment, for free speech and press, used to be a freedom to express unorthodox ideas. The Supreme Court divided over the rights of such far-out groups as Communists and Jehovah's Witnesses; Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes spoke of "freedom for the thought that we hate."

Nowadays there is little disagreement about freedom of opinion. As Justice Lewis Powell of the present Supreme Court put it, "Under the First Amendment there is no such thing as a false idea"—one, that is, that the government can constitutionally suppress.

The main battleground has become, instead, the right to obtain and publish the facts of public life.

The United States has no equivalent to Britain's Official Secrets Act. Instead of that act's much-mocked presumption that no government information of any kind may be disclosed without authorization, the American rule of thumb is that anything may be disclosed unless it comes within a very narrow category of national defense material.

The strictest statutes prohibit communicating secret atomic data and facts related to codes. Beyond that, there is a collection of espionage laws dating back to the first World War. There language is so turgid, the legislative purpose so obscure that law reviews have spent hundreds of pages trying to puzzle out their meaning.

As a rule the government has successfully invoked these criminal statutes only when defense information was given with intent to injure the United States or aid a foreign power.

There is a classification system, and millions of documents are routinely stamped secret or top secret. But classified material is just as routinely leaked in Washington—or used openly by officials. Leaking is part of the process. If it goes too far, the official involved may be disciplined, or there may be a political outcry. But apart from codes and atomic secrets, the disclosure of classified information is not in itself a violation of law.

When Theodore Sorensen, look-alike papers with him on leaving the White House and used them in writing a book, he broke no law or regulation; he did what many before him had done.

The Pentagon papers case was the first time the government had ever gone to court in an attempt to keep a newspaper from publishing alleged national security secrets—a fact that is itself a comment on American press freedom.

The attempt failed, broadly speaking, for two reasons. One was the presumption against prior restraints. The government, the court said, carried "a heavy burden of showing the justification for the imposition of such a restraint." The second was another general doctrine: that the president (or his agents in the executive branch) must have specific authority in legislation passed by Congress before taking action that may impinge on constitutional rights.

Literacy decline blamed on parents

By DR. WILLIAM H. NAULT

The U.S. Office of Education recently released the shocking fact that 23 million American adults cannot read or write well enough to function in today's world. And, the release went on to say that an additional 40 million possess just the minimal skills for "survival."

It's a startling report, but true. And the situation is getting worse. How can an advanced country like the U.S. have nearly one out of three people barely able to write or read—a country with the highest standard of living, the most schools, and the best trained teachers?

The problem is not basically the learner. The problem is learning itself. America has a serious learning gap.

Television is part of the problem. Instead of reading, too many children spend hours in front of the tube watching programs with little or no educational value. Indeed, in many instances the learning is actually negative, as violence and anti-social behavior are glorified daily on television. The Nielsen index shows that the average American child views over 15,000 hours of television by the time he or she graduates from high school, compared with only 11,000 hours of formal classroom instruction.

The present condition of our schools also plays a role. Education budgets have been cut. Access to up-to-date learning materials has decreased. And perhaps most damaging is the breakdown of order in our schools—particularly in central cities.

There's little doubt that television and the decline in our schools have contributed to America's learning gap. But there's still one place where learning can and should go on. It's the most important learning environment—the American home.

Educational specialists estimate that 50 percent of intellectual development takes place between birth and four years of age. This makes you, the parent, the single most important teacher your child will have.

The Missouri Department of Education has developed six easy guidelines to help parents encourage early childhood learning. I highly recommend taking note of these guidelines, and practicing them on a regular basis!

Listen to your child. Pay attention to what he or she is saying. Call attention to sounds. Listening and attaching meaning to sounds are essential skills that must be acquired before a child can read or succeed in a classroom environment.

Talk with your child. Direct conversation to him or her from infancy. Help your child learn to distinguish sounds and imitate them.

Take a walk together. Talk about the things you see and hear. Help the child classify objects as you see them: food, plants, farm animals, birds, etc.

Sing to your child. This teaches enjoyment of music and rhythm.

Help your child roll over, crawl, stand, and walk. Fill the developing muscle control. Let your child explore. Provide safe play objects such as boxes of different sizes, blocks, scraps of cloth with different textures, spoons, and pans.

Help your child learn that he or she is a part of a family group. Include your child in planning family activities. Give encouragement and praise when it is merited.

Control your child's television viewing. Search out better TV programs for children and share them with your child. Talk about the programs. Correct any misconceptions that may have developed from the programs. After inactivity, read to your child. If you can't read everyday, even when he or she is in the crib. And read in a way that will make the experience enjoyable. It's been shown that children who are taught the joys of reading at an early age learn to read quickly and with little difficulty in school.

Let your child choose a favorite book or story for you to read. When he or she is old enough, write down the words as you say them. This will show your child that printed material is nothing more than "printed talk" and that reading back this "talk" is a skill worth achieving.

Along with reading words, talk about the pictures. Let your child point out—and identify—different objects. Encourage your child to participate in the experience. If you're reading a narrative story, for example, you might stop in the middle and ask your child what happens next.

As your child matures, make use of the library. Encourage your child to select the books, but make sure they're not too difficult or advanced. Avoid picking books that frustrate or stymie the learning experience.

Early childhood reading should lead to meaningful discussion, and, hopefully, further study. Ask questions, and encourage your child to find the answers—first with your help, then through independent study. To do this properly, add good reference books to your home library—books that are not only authoritative, timely, and up-to-date, but are easy to use, and understandable.

Developing learning skills in pre-school children gives them a significant leg-up in their intellectual development.

If your child is already in school, there's still a great deal you can do. For one thing, don't abdicate the learning responsibility to the teacher. The home is still the primary learning environment. Continue to encourage independent reading, reading aloud, and discussion.

To learn more about what your child is studying and how you can help, visit the classroom and get advice from the teacher. Be supportive of the teacher and school in achieving the educational goals set for your child. Provide a place for your child to study in comfort and privacy. If problems arise in any subject area, learn the proper skills and techniques so you can help.

There's a lot you can do to help your child learn. There are also some things you shouldn't do. Don't nag your child to achieve or compare him or her to other children. Learning should be a pleasant and positive experience, an ongoing experience that's encouraged and praised.

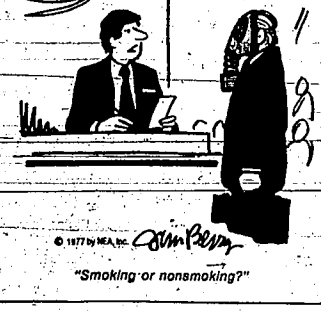

The tragedy of 23 million American adults unable to function in today's world might have been avoided. All it would have taken was a personal commitment to a child's intellectual development—a few hours a day that could influence a lifetime. It's a commitment that every parent should make. And if the latest statistics are accurate indicators, there's never been a better time to start than now.

Flight of drug-laden DC-6 goes to pot in Kansas wheat field

Plane, 5 tons of pot seized

JETMORE, Kan. (UPI) — Authorities seized more than five tons of marijuana — the largest haul in Kansas history — from a Colombian-registered plane that landed on a highway Monday.

The DC6 plane landed on U.S. Route 283 early Monday and veered into a wheat field near this southwest Kansas town. Two men were arrested at the scene, apparently after meeting the plane to refuel it, and two more were arrested several hours later.

The four suspects were arraigned late Monday in Hodgeman County District Court on felony charges of possessing marijuana with intent to sell and conspiracy to possess marijuana with intent to sell.

They were identified as George William Fersting Jr., 28, Cincinnati, Ohio; Robert Bedford, 29, Westville, Colo.; Robert Simons Jr., 28, Aspen, Colo.; and Juan Miguel, 25, Republic of Colombia.

A fifth suspect, also a Colombian national, was believed to have escaped. KBI official Robert Clester said the plane may have been trying to land on an old World War II airstrip about eight miles south of Jetmore.

Whether they tried to come down on that and missed because of the overcast skies, we can only guess," Clester said.

The previous record marijuana seizure in Kansas was on Feb. 19, 1975, when a plane was found abandoned in a field near Wichita. It contained 2,500 pounds of marijuana. Charges still are pending against several suspects in that case.

Hussein visit set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — King Hussein of Jordan will visit President Carter in two weeks in a continuation of Carter's consultations with Middle East leaders, the White House announced Tuesday.

Presidential spokesmen said Hussein, following Egypt's President Anwar Sadat and Israel's Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin to Washington, will pay an official visit April 25-26.

Solons in Indiana legalize laetrile

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Defying bans by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, the Indiana legislature has voted to legalize the controversial cancer drug laetrile and moved toward legalization of saccharin as well.

The inclusion of saccharin was one of four amendments to a laetrile bill made in a House-Senate conference committee report adopted Monday.

Defense industry draws 620 in '75

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The number of high level Pentagon officials taking jobs in defense industry apparently increased sharply last year, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said today.

Proxmire said 620 former majors, lieutenant commanders and men of higher rank reported during fiscal year 1975 they accepted jobs in defense industry. Last year the number increased 68 per cent to 1,044.

AUCTION

PERSIAN RUGS & OTHER ORIENTAL RUGS

A beautiful collection of genuine hand woven Persian and oriental rugs is being offered at auction to the highest bidder: Included are Kerman, Kashans, Ardabil, Afghan, Bokhara, Gabriz, Belouch, Afshar, Qume, Indian and many other Collectors Pieces.

THURSDAY, APRIL 14 8:00 P.M.
Viewing at 7:00 P.M.

BLUE LAKES INN, 1357 Blue Lakes Blvd., North, U.S. 93, Twin Falls, Idaho

NOTE ABOUT THIS AUCTION: Iran, the largest producer of hand woven carpets and rugs has been a backward, slow-moving country for centuries. Suddenly with the advent of industry, oil and free education, it zoomed into the 20th century. As a result, the children, who are the majority of the weavers, were lured away from the ancient art of weaving. In our opinion, this great art will soon be lost and so scarce that today European collectors and dealers are rushing to America to collect these beautiful carpets.

Judy has miscarriage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Judy Carter, the wife of President Carter's son Jack, suffered a miscarriage Tuesday night, but White House officials said she was in good condition.

"She's fine and there are no complications," said Mary Hoyt, press secretary to First Lady Rosalynn Carter.

Judy, 28, was taken from Camp David, Md., by ambulance to Bethesda Naval Hospital outside Washington. The drive takes approximately one hour.

Fee, but no will

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A cousin of Howard Hughes was paid $25,000 Tuesday for running the search that failed to find Hughes' will.

Richard-Gano, special administrator of Hughes' California properties, petitioned Superior Court for the fee, saying he spent 750 hours looking for a valid will. There was no opposition and Judge Neil Lake granted the request.

Gano said Hughes obviously did make several wills during his lifetime. — unsigned copies, codicils and references to them were found — search covering five nations failed to discover any of them.

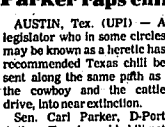

Rosalynn patron of arts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House says First Lady Rosalynn Carter will serve as honorary chairman of the board of trustees for the John-Fitzgerald Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

"She regards the Kennedy Center as one of the wonders of the world," said Mary Hoyt, Mrs. Carter's press secretary. "And certainly one of the most delightful aspects of moving to Washington."

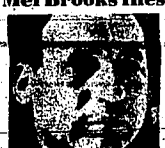

Parker raps chili idea

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A legislator who in some circles may be known as a heretic has recommended Texas chili be sent along the same path as the cowboy and the cattle drive, into near extinction.

Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, Tuesday said chili not

Mel Brooks files suit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Comedian and movie producer Mel Brooks was sued for $2 million in Superior Court Tuesday by Nathan Cohen, who alleged Brooks popular film "Silent Movie" was plagiarized from a script Cohen wrote in 1974, "Jack and the Beanstalk," and submitted to Brooks.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California says a "Baskins-Robbins ice cream cone" was the only thing he purchased during his self-paid $1,500 three-day visit to Japan where he lobbied for auto assembly plants in his state.

"I'll tell you one thing," Brown told reporters on his return Tuesday, "when you pay your own way, you are very careful about costs."

Divorce final

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Country music star Hank Williams Jr.'s divorce from his wife of six years, Gwendolyn Yorgain Williams, has been finalized.

Mrs. Williams, a 29-year-old former model, cited "cruel and inhuman treatment" as grounds for the divorce.

She filed a petition for divorce May 22, 1975.

Arkansas pair gets check from Presley

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Singer Elvis Presley has given an Arkansas couple a $1,000 check to help them recover from a series of misfortunes that have left them penniless and years away from a normal life.

"I just don't believe it," said Karen Bullock, 29, wife of James Bullock, 31, Marlon, Ark., who is hospitalized with injuries received in a two-car crash March 29. "People have been so nice to us. The words I feel in my heart just won't come out."

Mrs. Bullock's mother, Gladys Fillingim, said Presley, who himself was released from a hospital last week for treatment of flu and fatigue, has "one of the best hearts in the world."

"We hope that God will bless him in every way and give him health and everything that is good in life," she said.

Bullock received multiple fractures, internal injuries and underwent surgery for removal of part of his intestine after the car accident in which a Mississippi man was killed. The Bullocks' automobile was stolen from the hospital parking lot Saturday night. Police recovered the car but parts were missing including a generator.

Bullock, a Navy veteran, lost his left arm and leg in a tractor accident at the Shelby County Penal Farm in 1969. He was serving time at the farm for an attempt to commit robbery.

He has been unable to find a job.

Court clears way for burial request

ST. ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — A funeral home owner says he has plenty of space to bury a millionaire in his Ferrari and only needs final approval to comply with her request.

Sandra Irene West, 36, left a 1972 hand-written will requesting she be dressed in a lace nightgown, seated in the sports car "with the seat slanted comfortably" and buried next to her late husband, oil-cattle heir Ike West Jr., in the Alamo Masonic Cemetery.

Porter Loring Jr. said Tuesday ample space was available in the West plot at the cemetery to inter the automobile.

"Apparently every effort is being made to comply with her wishes as expressed in the will," said Loring.

Mrs. West's nurse, Mildred Richards, has testified the woman was a student of Egyptology and often mentioned that Egyptian monarchs were buried with their worldly possessions and several times made references to wanting to be buried in the car.

At the end of a four-hour hearing this week, Los Angeles Superior Court Commissioner Franklin E. Dana ordered that Mrs. West's funeral request

Phony check charges filed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Five men and a woman have been indicted on charges they printed and passed $2 million in counterfeit bank checks which were used to purchase expensive automobiles, gold coins and cameras for resale.

A 29-count federal indictment announced Tuesday alleged the ring sold some $1.7 million in phony checks and purchased items for resale with the remainder of the $2 million.

The items purchased included a $45,000 Rolls Royce from a resident of Ontario, Canada; gold coins from a Texas firm and cameras from the Polaroid company in New Jersey.

be honored. But he ruled the auto enclosing the body should be buried "in a wooden crate to preserve dignity."

Loring said he had been in contact with the judge about orders for the bizarre funeral, but "other than that we've had no contact" about finalizing funeral plans. He ventured no guess on when the funeral might take place.

In the hand-written will, Mrs. West left most of her multimillion dollar estate to her brother-in-law, Sol West Jr. of Comfort, Tex., provided he carry out the funeral instructions. Sol and Ike West Jr. were nephews of the founder of the city of George West, Tex.

Cordova arrested

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — FBI agents Tuesday arrested actor Cesar Cordova, 40, on charges of skipping out on New York City bank fraud charges.

Cordova was arrested at a Sunset Boulevard hotel, where he was living under the name Rodolfo Reyes, on charges of failure to appear at a court hearing in New York three years ago.

Water plan needs solons' OK

BOISE (UPI) — Barring a constitutional challenge, legislative approval apparently will be necessary before any of the State Water Plan becomes effective, Attorney General Wayne L. Kidwell said today.

Water Director Stephen C. Allred asked the attorney general whether provisions of the water plan not specifically calling for amendment of existing laws or new legislation become effective upon adoption by the board.

He also asked whether a bill requiring legislative approval of the plan would be in conflict with the Idaho Constitution which authorized the formulation of the plan.

Deputy Attorney General Guy Hurlburt said a reading both of the Constitution and the bill in question reflects an intent to require legislative approval before any of the State Water Plan becomes effective.

Hurlburt said enactment of the bill into law has created a presumption of constitutionality even though it could be argued that there are flaws in the legislation.

He said the Constitution gives the Water Resource Board power to formulate and implement a State Water Plan. But, he said, it should be emphasized the Constitution also provides that the plan "shall be under the laws as may be prescribed by the legislature."

Thus, he said, it easily could be assumed that the constitutional mandate requires the board to prepare a state water plan which then should be forwarded to the legislature for adoption.

"Following adoption by the Idaho Legislature the plan may then be implemented by the State Water Resource Board," he said, adding that adoption by the lawmakers may be presumed a logical intermediate step to implementation.

He said now that the board has prepared the plan the legislature "should have a reasonable time to consider and act upon the plan as prepared." He said if the plan is rejected or not adopted the legislature implicitly is under a duty to state its reasons so the board then could correct and resubmit a plan pursuant to the wishes of the legislature.

"In effect, Article 15, section 7, Idaho Constitution, makes the legislature and the State Water Resource Board partners in preparing, adopting and implementing a State Water Resource Plan," the opinion said.

"If the board had failed to formulate a plan, a mandamus action could lie in the courts of the State of Idaho," it said.

"Similarly, if the legislature fails to adopt a plan or give reasons for rejection within a reasonable time an action in court may also be appropriate."

Further, legal action may lie if the State Water Resource Board fails to implement an adopted Water Resource Plan," Hurlburt said.

"However, nothing at this point indicates any bad faith on the part of either the legislature or the Water Resource Board.

"In short, the framework of the State Water Resource Plan under (the) ... Constitution and (the) legislative oversight bill requires formulation and implementation of the plan by the Water Resource Board and adoption by the legislature," he said.

"Therefore, the plan may not be implemented until the previous step — adoption has been completed."

Evans outlines energy cut plan

BOISE (UPI) — Assistance to homeowners, increased use of public transportation and agricultural demonstration programs are among projects included in a plan to cut the state's anticipated energy consumption five per cent by 1980.

This plan will be part of the basis for our development of an overall statewide energy policy. I am confident that these programs will reduce energy consumption in Idaho and will help every Idahoan in coping with the energy crisis," Gov. John V. Evans said when he released the plan Tuesday.

Under the plan the Idaho Office of Energy would administer programs funded by the Federal Energy Administration.

The budgets, which are dependent on federal appropriations, are set at more than $250,000 in 1977 and are expected to more than $320,000 in 1978. The 1977 budget is expected to be set at some $330,000 and in 1980 it is estimated at more than

The package covers the following areas:

- Building lighting and thermal improvements.
- Transportation efficiency programs.
- Industrial and commercial conservation.
- Energy conservation programs.
- Community education and conservation efforts.

The plan includes an energy audit program for homeowners that involves local training sessions on heat loss measurement, insulation and weatherstripping. It is expected to achieve energy savings of 20 per cent of the total package goal and would be offered in 1978.

Education of state employees on alternative methods of transportation with incentives of flexible working hours is part of a plan scheduled to be in July 1977.

Demonstration irrigation and farming practices projects also are planned in 1977 under the energy-saving blueprint.

Rental credit due

BOISE (UPI) — Landholders on state grazing land can expect a credit on their 1978 rental bill in December.

The State Land Board reduced Tuesday the lease rate for 25 per cent for the 1977 season only. The reduction will be credited on the 1978 billings instead of being returned this year as a rebate, a Land Department official said.

The Idaho Cattlemen's Association earlier asked the board for the reduction to provide financial relief from drought conditions.

David Tidwell, the Department of Lands administrator of the division of lands and range, said the figure was "about as realistic as possible."

The board, in granting the fee reduction, "realized the health of that industry is important to the state," he said.

Tidwell said the average rental rate is 28 cents per acre and the 25 per cent decrease would give lessees about five-cent discount for this year only.

On the statewide scene pastures are in need of moisture to provide adequate grazing but livestock continue to be in very good condition with only isolated areas reporting health problems.

Moisture declines

BOISE (UPI) — Most Idaho farmers expect soil moisture supplies to be short this season, according to the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Responses to a survey conducted by the agency showed 28 per cent anticipate "very short" supplies, 43 per cent think they will be "short" and 19 per cent are predicting "adequate" supplies.

The reporting service said field work and spring crop planting are in full swing in northern Idaho as lentils, peas and grass seed are going into the ground.

Adult trial likely

BOISE (UPI) — Fourth District Judge Gerald Schroeder says a Boise teenager may be tried as an adult on charges of murdering Enrico Flory, 76, in his home last June.

under advisement the case of another boy. That youth, now 16, was only 15 at the time of the slaying. The boy, now 18, was 17 at the time.

Flory was suffocated during a robbery attempt. Two other boys accused in the case have been treated as juveniles.

Death sentence set

BOISE (UPI) — Fourth District Judge W. E. Smith will sentence Jean Coffitt, 35, May 5 on a voluntary manslaughter charge in the March 19 gunshot death of her husband, Wesley, 56.

to the charge Tuesday. She faces up to 10 years in prison.

Coffitt was shot to death with a .308-caliber rifle in the couple's home. Authorities said the shooting apparently stemmed from "family difficulties."

Carter commutes 'Gate burglar's term

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter, while commuting the sentence of Watergate burglar G. Gordon Liddy, "in the interest of equity and justice," has no plans to commute other Watergate convictions.

As far as the White House is concerned, this ruling has no bearing on other cases.

White House press secretary Rex Graman said Tuesday after announcing Liddy's decision to reduce his sentence, set by Federal Judge John J. Sirica at 30 years and eight months to 20 years.

Liddy, his sentence reduced to eight years, will be eligible for parole July 9 from the federal prison in Allenwood, Pa. He has been imprisoned four years on charges stemming from the June 17, 1972, burglary of Democratic National Committee headquarters.

Sirica, referring to the President, told UPI, "He did, apparently, what he thought was right and I did what I thought was right when I imposed the original sentence."

Graman said the President "took this action in the interest of equity and justice based on a comparison of Mr. Liddy's sentence with those of all others convicted in Watergate related prosecutions."

Former Attorney General John Mitchell and former White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman received eight-year sentences for their parts in the Watergate scandal that forced President Nixon from office.

Under the Carter action, a $40,000 fine remains in effect for Liddy. He "would still be required to pay the fine or a portion of it," Graman said.

Liddy has served more time in jail than any other Watergate figure.

The only one of the seven original Watergate burglars, Liddy, a mustached former FBI agent, went to Mitchell with a $1 million plan for "dirty tricks" against Nixon's "enemies."

The plan was trimmed to $250,000, and, according to a jury, approved by Mitchell. It included wiretapping, surveillance and photographing documents — all crimes uncovered in the Watergate probe. His more bizarre proposals — abducting radical demonstrators who might disrupt the 1972 GOP convention and the call girls for Democrats apparently were never carried out.

Carter signed the order on the recommendation of Attorney General Griffin Bell.

Study asks hospital cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's supply of hospital beds and services could be reduced by 20 per cent "or more" without harming the health of Americans, a government subsidized study said today.

But the study, released by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, warns eliminating too much unnecessary hospital capacity too soon could cause "troublesome political reaction" and opposition from the medical profession.

Unless the demand for the health services is reduced simultaneously, the study said one effect could be "patient queuing" for non-emergency services.

"Even England and Canada, with staggering regulatory authority over their hospitals, have had to proceed quite slowly in reducing excess hospital capacity because of public and provider reaction," said the study done for HEW's bureau of health planning and resources.

A 10 per cent cutback in hospital capacity, if accomplished by closing entire hospitals, could reduce hospital spending by at least $3 billion a year, HEW said. A 20 per cent reduction would double the savings.

"If done in an orderly and appropriate manner, it would appear that hospital capacity in the United States could be reduced, conservatively, by at least 20 per cent or more without harm to the health of the American people," the study said.

Hospital capacity was defined as including labor, service equipment and capital assets as well as patient beds.

"It is excess in the labor (personnel) and capital intensity of beds, as well as in the number of beds which generates excessive acute inpatient care cost," the study said.

"While effective reduction of hospital capacity would likely restrain excess hospital use and expenditures, if equal attention is not given to restraining hospital demand, patient queuing and the necessity for increased public utility types of controls may be significant side effects," the study said.

Tank cost soaring

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Army officials soon are expected to finish negotiating a change in a contract for the XM1 battle tank that will escalate the armored vehicle's testing costs by 15 per cent, Pentagon officials say.

One congressman described the increase as the result of "dishonesty" on the part of the Army, which knew the change was coming when it costed competitive bidding for the tank last year.

The change is an addition of $29.6 million for further testing of the turbine engine for the vehicle, which is expected to go into production about 1980.

as the main U.S. battle tank.

The Army plans to buy more than 3,000 of the tanks at a cost now estimated at about $4.9 billion.

The additional tests would be added to a three-year, $186.4 million development contract awarded Chrysler Corp. last November for its version of the 56-ton XM1.

The $29.6 million projection was made in recent congressional testimony by Assistant Army Secretary Edward A. Miller. Army spokesmen said no firmer figure was available until the completion of the negotiations, expected within the next couple of weeks.

Planes hit, 15 escape

STRATFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Two private airplanes carrying about 15 persons collided in the air late Tuesday, but both planes landed safely and no injuries were reported, officials said.

The cause of the collision, which occurred around 11 p.m. about 10 miles north of the Sikorsky Memorial Airport, was not immediately known.

A spokesman at the airport foyer said about 15 persons in both planes escaped unhurt.

The front area of one plane, a Piper Cherokee, was reported heavily damaged. The other, a twin engine jet, had its tail damaged and the landing gear was apparently thrown out of commission.

Team evaluates Hagerman School

HAGERMAN — Hagerman High School will be visited by an evaluation team today and Thursday as part of the once-a-decade inspection for accreditation with the Northwest Secondary School Accrediting Association.

Laura McNulty, school clerk, said members of the evaluation team include teachers in various Magic Valley schools and personnel from the State Board of Education.

Trustees Monday night approved final plans for the senior class field trip to Salt Lake City Thursday and Friday. The students will visit points of interest such as Hill Air Force Base, Geneva Steel and an observatory.

Supt. Ken Black told trustees that a series of composition will be added to the graduation requirements, starting with this year's freshman class.

The addition is to comply with state graduation requirements.

Students also will be required to take speech, but Hagerman already has the same requirement, he said.

The annual trustee election was set May 17 from noon to 8 p.m. In the high school gymnasium. Two trustee posts will be filled in zones 2 and 3. Incumbents are Louie Koopman and VERN Cox.

The annual budget hearing was set for June 13. Trustees decided to offer contract to all non-tenure teachers. Tenured teachers were rehired last month.

The board also approved giving Mrs. Grace Slater, second grade teacher, a three-week leave of absence next November. She will travel to Indian in connection with a missionary project for the Mennonite Church.

Alternate sprinkling days set at Hansen

HANSEN — Hansen City Council voted Monday night to use alternate sprinkling days for the north and south sections of the city to help conserve water.

The system which was used last year will be in effect again with the area north of U.S. 30 using water for irrigation on Wednesday, Friday and Sunday, and those on the south of the highway on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Officials say they have no idea what will occur this year as to well water supplies. Last year the city made some improvements on the well and also expanded the holding tank.

In view of drought conditions, and community growth, the council voted to continue the restrictions to be on the safe side.

Any resident who can use ditch water for irrigating lawns and gardens is encouraged to do so.

Applications for summer recreation director have been received and will be accepted until next Monday when the council will hold a special meeting to go over the applications and possibly select a director. City Clerk Connie Trevey reported.

The council also voted to observe Johnny Horizon Day in the city May 7 to coincide with the county cleanup campaign of the same date. Members of the Hansen High School Horizon Club will work with the city in sponsoring the event in the community.

School lunch price hiked

GLENN'S FERRY — Glenn's Ferry school lunch price increases have been approved. Elementary school children will pay 45 cents for lunch, secondary pupils 50 cents and adults 75 cents. The fall term of school will commence on Aug. 22.

Castleford trustee election May 17

TWIN FALLS — One vacancy on the Castleford School Board will be filled in the May 17 trustee election, School Supt. Richard Peters said Tuesday. He said Maurice Guerry, who is completing his first three-year term, is the only member with an expiring term this year. Guerry has not announced if he plans to seek re-election. In the regular school board meeting Monday night, Jila LaGrone, teacher of English, Spanish and the school librarian, reported on her duties.

Board members approved expanding the school's insurance coverage to include musical instruments and athletic equipment during trips away from the home school. Cost will be only about $100 per year for the additional coverage, Peters said.

GIVE YOUR DOG CONCENTRATED GOODNESS WITH OUR TOP DOG'S OVEN-BAKED FOODS.

Our president, Jason Hervin, is somewhat dogmatic about the way he makes dry dog food. He refuses to convert to the ultra-fast pressure-cooker method most all the big national brands are using.

Because Jason knows that only slow, oven-baking can produce foods like his Instant Mix and Biscuit Style. Foods full of concentrated nutrition; instead of air bubbles.

To your dog, this means a more digestible meal. To you, it means a solid savings because it takes fewer cups to fill him up.

Fortunately, we're still small enough to spend more time on each bag of food. Truth is, Jason still personally inspects our products for aroma, color and 100% nutrition.

Try Instant Mix for average sized dogs, or Biscuit Style for bigger dogs (and for those who could use extra chewing for cleaner teeth).

Both come packed with concentrated goodness, because our president still concentrates on making dog food with a human touch.

TF school board OK's new reading program

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A new elementary reading program will have Twin Falls youngsters learning from the same texts in all schools next year.

The school board adopted a resolution Tuesday night approving the new program, which had been researched and voted on by elementary teachers.

Curriculum director Dennis Messenger told the board the Lippincott texts to be used were selected by teachers after a review of 15 texts or programs. He said the Lippincott series was "sequential, linguistic, phonetic" and would be used from kindergarten through the eighth grade.

Messenger told the board the initial cost of the program would be about $55,000. However, he added after the board meeting that the initial cost would be made up in savings over present outlays in about four years.

The district now uses three different reading programs, he said, which are selected by teachers and principals. Maintenance of the three programs cost the district about $31,000 this year for text replacements and supplemental material, he said.

Under the Lippincott system, the maintenance cost will be about $16,000 annually, he added. Much of the savings will accrue because a supplementary phonics program used with the present texts will no longer be needed, he said.

"By the fourth year of the new program, the initial cost will be balanced out," Messenger said. He said the district has a five-year, "no-raise" commitment from Lippincott.

Up to now, Messenger said, the district has had "no coordinated effort" in its reading program.

"This was one of the strong constraints to our present reading program was the lack of continuity," he said.

Elementary principals had complained earlier that the present system left students from various elementary schools with different levels of preparation and skill which required unnecessarily difficult adjustments in the higher grades.

Adoption of the reading program Tuesday night was preceded by acceptance of a bid for school busing which will add about 16 per cent to district transportation costs next year.

The board also approved an application to the state which will add one "facilitator" (teacher) to the district's gifted student program next year.

The school bus bid by Kirkman Brothers, Inc., will increase the district's costs to about $216,000 next year.

While that is about 16 per cent more than the $186,000 originally called for this year it actually will mean a savings for the district. The double-shifting of O'Leary Junior High students at the high school this year added about $32,000 to the district's busing costs, bringing them to about $18,000.

The Kirkman bid was the only bid submitted for busing. The firm has operated a school bus fleet under contract with the district for several years.

Kirkman's actual bid called for outlays of $39.94 per day for eight 73-passenger buses and for $37.49 per day for twenty-four 66-passenger buses. Routes exceeding 30 miles one-way would be charged 6 cents per mile for each mile over 60 per day.

District officials estimated the cost of busing next year would be about $1,212 per day, more than $10 per month per student transported.

Officer mans Blaine roadblock in search for policeman's abductor

Blaine manhunt finds no trace of fugitive

KETCHUM — A search plane was unable to spot any sign of a man who late Monday afternoon abducted and later released unarmed Ketchum Police Officer Jerry Englebert, police say.

"It's something I'd just as soon not go through again," Englebert remarked calmly today about his kidnapping at gun point.

The man seemed nervous during the abduction, trying to figure out what he would do next, Englebert said.

"My observation was that he would have been dangerous if I hadn't done what he said," the Ketchum officer stated. "It was no fooling around, do what I say. His main concern was to get away."

Roadblocks were set up Monday and Tuesday in the Lake Creek area north of here to contain the area where the gunman is believed to have fled. Officers were checking all cars passing through the area for the man who is reportedly armed with a .357 Magnum and a .32 calibre automatic pistol.

No new leads have been turned up after more than 20 men from state, county and city law enforcement agencies combed the back hills Tuesday in search of the man, police say.

During the search Tuesday, police discovered some freshly broken fire wood several miles back up Lake Creek, but authorities say they cannot be sure it was collected by the man they are seeking.

"Now everything is speculation," Ketchum Police Chief Dennis Haynes commented today. "They're trying to out guess him. What did he do? And what didn't he do?"

"I wouldn't think he could survive much longer," Haynes said.

The suspect, whose name has not been released by police but is believed to be from the Caldwell area, is reported to have felony and misdemeanor warrants outstanding from Idaho and a $5,000 bail escape warrant from Salt Lake City.

Ketchum police await photographs of the suspect to verify his identity before issuing warrants of their own.

Police assume the man is still hiding in the back country. Haynes said there have been no stolen vehicle reports in the last few days and no sign that the man had any form of transportation. Law enforcement agencies in other counties have been alerted.

The ordeal began about 3:30 p.m. Monday when Englebert responded to a call from First Security Bank. A man was trying to cash a fraudulent check, written on a Ketchum account, for which bank employees have been warned to look.

Englebert and Blaine County Investigator Pat Pidgeon arrived at the bank and talked to the suspect. Englebert took the man to the patrol car and started back to the Ketchum Police Station, one and a half blocks away, while Pidgeon remained in the bank to talk to a witness.

As they pulled into the police station parking lot, Englebert says the man pulled what looked like a .32 calibre pistol on him and "he just said take it north out of town, and he kept the gun drawn on me."

As they drove, the man asked Englebert about a canyon to turn up and seemed to be trying to work out an escape plan.

The man told Englebert to "turn onto Lake

Creek Road, and they drove east off U.S. 93.

"I was just trying to do what the man said," Englebert said about his thoughts during the abduction. "I was just trying to figure out my moves and what the man had in mind at the end."

Four miles down Lake Creek Road, the man told Englebert to stop the car and he handcuffed the officer to the divider screen in the back seat.

"He told me when he left the car that he wasn't going back to prison and nobody should come for him," Englebert said. "Or he said something like he would stop anybody that tried to take him."

The man then took Englebert's .357 Magnum and started off on foot into the canyon. Englebert managed to roll down the back window and climb through it. With one hand still handcuffed to the divider screen, he opened the front door and was able to reach for the car keys left on the floor. He put them in the ignition and then stretched with his free hand turned on the patrol car's microphone to alert his fellow officers of where he was.

In about 15 minutes they arrived to free him and the search for the kidnaper began.

Electric switch: Power heads north

"The contracts basically provide that energy will be delivered back and forth at the respective costs of production plus a reasonable margin of profit," Hector Durocher, BPA power manager, said regarding the price gap.

He said Northwestern utilities by law have priority on the cheap, surplus BPA hydropower generated in normal water years.

Even so, because of the fuel contracts and the costs involved in shutting down thermal plants, Durocher said private northwestern utilities often keep the plants running when the cheap hydropower is available.

In these cases, the hydropower is still sold south at the 3 to 3.5 mill rate.

Electricity from coal-fired and nuclear plants costs about half as much to generate as electricity from California oil-fired plants.

But, Durocher said, as long as enough of the cheap hydropower is available, the California utilities do not purchase the more expensive thermal power generated further northwest.

He said the BPA plans to consider the possibility of charging thermal power rates for surplus hydroelectricity sold to California in its next rate case scheduled for 1979.

TF street proposal draws complaints

Everett Kidner, assistant engineer for the Magic Valley district of the state transportation department, said recent widening at North Five Points had improved traffic congestion at the intersection but said, "By 1982, we'll be right back where we started from."

While the Four Points plan would not solve traffic congestion at the intersection forever, it would give the transportation department more time to develop new arterial routes for incoming Twin Falls traffic, Kidner said.

Virtually no one complained about the fast of the state transportation department's plan which calls for widening of Blue Lakes Boulevard North from North Five Points to the Perrine Bridge and with major improvements at the street's intersection with Filer Avenue, Falls Avenue and Pole Line Road. The plan calls for a 14-foot-wide median from Pole Line Road to North Five Points. The median would provide refuge for left-turning traffic.

Referring to the alternative to leave North Five Points as it is, Howard Johnson, head of the Magic Valley district of the state transportation department, said, "It doesn't seem logical to me to build a six-inch pipeline with a two-inch pipeline valve."

Kidner said the entire project would cost an estimated $3.7 million, including about $273,000 for acquisition of land at North Five Points and $3.2 million for acquisition of land along Blue Lakes Boulevard North.

Harry Day, who conducted the hearing for the transportation department, said the department will continue to take taped comments and written testimony on the project until May 10.

The state transportation board "will weigh all the evidence," before making a decision on what will be done along Blue Lakes, he said.

Trial set on tax case

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Federal District Judge Ray McNichols in Boise Tuesday set a trial date of May 31 for the case of the U.S. versus Joseph E. Nielsen, the Rexburg man who has been filing blank tax returns under the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution.

Nielsen and his wife, Leath, entered pleas Feb. 8 of not guilty to three counts of allegedly failing to file a tax return for each of the years 1972-74 and to one count each of allegedly supplying a false and fraudulent exemption certificate in 1974.

The maximum penalty for failure to file a tax return is $10,000 or one year in prison or both and for supplying a false and fraudulent exemption certificate, $500 or one year or both.

The Niensens will receive a jury trial in federal district court in Pocatello beginning May 31 at 9:30 a.m.

The present case may be the first in Idaho against a filer of blank tax returns which charges failure to file a return.

Reportedly, the government is pointing to a 1970 federal court decision under which blank returns are not considered valid and constitute a violation of the tax laws.

Nielsen believes, however, that tax returns are testimony that potentially could be used against him in a criminal proceeding and that, therefore, he can use his Fifth Amendment rights in filing a blank tax return.

When Nielsen and the other eastern Idaho citizens filed a blank return in 1971, the IRS ordered them to turn over their records, but the four men refused on the basis of the Fourth (against unreasonable seizure of personal property) and Fifth Amendments.

For failure to honor the summons, the IRS got a court order requiring them to "show cause" why they should not be held in contempt.

They appeared before Federal District Court Judge McNichols in Pocatello in 1974.

Nielsen acted as his own attorney and said that submitting his records to the IRS "would cause me to testify against myself and that testimony might be used against me in a criminal proceeding."

McNichols agreed with Nielsen and voided the IRS summons.

Rupert aides study farmer vs. homeowner needs

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Rupert officials Tuesday weighed the choice of angering farmers by causing fluctuating canal water levels or irking city residents whose lawns might go dry and basements become flooded.

The Rupert officials agreed they could shut off the city's irrigation water-return pumps which overflow a Mindoko Irrigation District canal at night, but warned that such action could bring city lawsuits.

"I don't think we're going to get irrigated that way," Mayor Wendell Johnson said, "but we're willing to give it a try."

City officials met with the Mindoko Irrigation District directors Tuesday after MID officials complained that they do not want irrigation water pumped into the MID drain ditch by the city during the night.

"You've got to make them (city residents) water around the clock or cut down so they have to," MID chairman Ruben Ketterling said.

Ketterling said the city is taking water from the canal during the day and dumping it back in at night, when residents are not watering their lawns.

"We can't take a hundred feet back into the canal," Ketterling said. "There's got to be more cooperation from the city."

Mayor Johnson told the board that MID delivers the water and the city will try to cooperate, "but we want the same kind of deal everyone else is getting," Johnson said much of the fluctuation of water levels in the canals stems from five to 20-acre farms just outside the city limits.

Irvin Hardy, city low-pressure water chief, said city residents do not stop watering during the night.

Councilman Dwaine Allred, who lives in the Grandview addition, said, "I have to change water 'all night long.' There's not enough pressure to do it in one day."

Allred said many city residents face the same situation, although they are allowed to water their lawns only on a fifth-day rotation basis.

Mayor Johnson pointed out that the city met with the irrigation district when it set up the five-day rotation.

"You tell us what we have to do, and we'll try to do it," Johnson said.

Ketterling again insisted that residents of the city should have to irrigate through the night, as farmers do, and that the city should set specific times for each householder to water their lawns.

Allred pointed out that this is a short-water year and said he thought the MID would be happy to get water returned from the city.

MID board member, George Stromire, said the return waters are forcing an overflow onto farm land, and farmers are threatening to sue this year.

Fellow board member William Nichols suggested that women water their lawns in the daytime, while their husbands are at work, to avoid the heavy drain in the early evening.

Hardy said the city can shut off its return pumps at a given time (such as 10 or 11 p.m.) and turn them on again in the early morning. But he pointed out that the pumps also pulled subwater out of the ground.

With the pumps off, he said, some basements could be flooded and homes ruined. He said the city could face lawsuits.

"We don't want that sub either," Mayor Johnson said.

He called one farmer who flood irrigated 24 acres "all the time," and said the heavy flooding by neighboring farmers is a major cause of the high sub-water level.

The mayor said, if city residents used all the water MID reports delivering, "somebody is going to have a big lake."

Stocks at Midday

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened higher Wednesday in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a 24.49-point winner, closed at 1,000.34, up ahead 0.68 point to 973.84 shortly after the opening. The closely watched average climbed 13.06 points Tuesday, its best gain in six months.

Advances led declines, 194 to 86, among the 434 issues crossing the tape in the early going.

Investors are encouraged that many first-quarter earnings reports, particularly those of some of the blue-chip firms, have been better than expected. Along with the government's recent report that first-quarter retail sales were 11 per cent higher than a year ago, the earnings results showed the economy had come through the harshest winter since 1918 in strong condition.

Furthermore, the pricing of a Southern Bell telephone debt issue to yield 8.17 per cent—much lower than had been expected—indicated long-term interest rates are not rising. This has sent investors into the market.

The latest Federal Reserve Board report showed the nation's basic money supply fell $1.2 billion, the second consecutive sharp decline. The decline took pressure off the Fed to tighten credit and, in turn, eased pressure on interest rates.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 14, 1977

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are now able to get much accomplished that requires your intuitive perceptions. Beneficial results will follow in the days ahead if you channel your energies in a positive manner.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Attend to important business and personal affairs early in the day and get excellent results. Don't be too forceful with others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Look to your good friends for the backing you need in a business venture. Take no chances with your reputation.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Take your rightful place in the business world and trend career efforts in the right direction. Show that you have common sense.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) New ventures can be successful at this time, provided you use positive methods. Be more sure of yourself.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make sure you don't neglect to pay an important bill. Keep promises you have made to others. Make extra effort to please mate.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make sure you keep promises made to others and avoid possible trouble. Be careful of one who could do you harm.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Talk your plans over with co-workers so that you can all work harmoniously together. Evening is best spent at home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be extra careful in the handling of business matters which could be quite complicated at this time. Take it easy tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you are more tactful at home you can approve conditions there appreciably. Don't neglect to pay bills.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make sure you know what associates desire of you and then do your very best to please. Sidelstep a fair-weather friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have to think more carefully if you want to improve your financial position. Relax at home tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have good ideas to improve personal relationships with others so put them in operation without delay.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will intuitively know how to handle problems without too much study or fussing, but should be taught to use good judgment and to doublecheck whatever may be puzzling. Give right ethical training early in life.

what's what

Few men anymore, even men of means, visit professional manicurists. Mostly, they wash their own hands and trim their own nails. There was a time, though, when the barber-shop manicure by a pretty lady was a weekly ritual among status-conscious fellows. For instance, that man among men, Teddy Roosevelt, was super finicky about getting his fingernails cleaned, filed and polished. In those days a man might put a little bay rum on his cheeks, but usually, that was just to camouflage the liquor on his breath. Cologne was only for sissies.

Most common fish in the sea is said to be one that's least often seen by people. Namely, the "deep water" specimen known as the bristlemouth.

"Aardvark" is Dutch Afrikaans for "earth pig." Only bird that has a comb is the chicken. No wild animal is more protective of its young than the walrus.

VICTORY MESSAGE

Julius Caesar's "I came, I saw, I conquered" was not the shortest victory message of all time. Neither was that World War II pilot's "Sighted ship, sank same." Shorter was the line on Nov. 5, 1794, by Russian General Suvarov to Czarina Catherine II. He'd cracked the fortifications at Praga, a suburb of Warsaw, and thus captured the Polish capital. His two-word dispatch to her was "Hurrah, Praga." She countered niftily to tell him of his promotion with "Bravo, Field Marshal."

Claim is that women do not tend to take up a sport unless that sport calls for a particularly attractive costume. Like tennis, for instance. Or golf. Or swimming. Bowling is no exception. Nor is skiing. Lady bowlers and skiers seem very fond of clinging slacks and stretch pants. Among every 100 women, 50 have a normal figure, 22 are what you might call slender, and the other 28 are something else, so to speak.

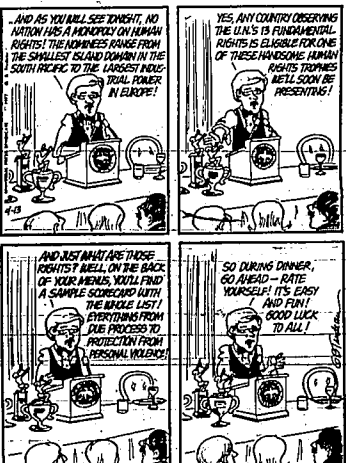

INFLUENCE

What's the most influential non-elective office in American government? Nine out of 10 scholars so queried will tell you it's that of Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. But I don't think so. That worthy's judgments are tempered by those of eight other justices. Far more influential is the person identified as First Lady, no?

At the time of the writing of the U. S. Constitution and the Bill of Rights, 97 per cent of all Americans lived out on acreage. Make mention of this because not everybody realizes those documents were written specifically for farmers.

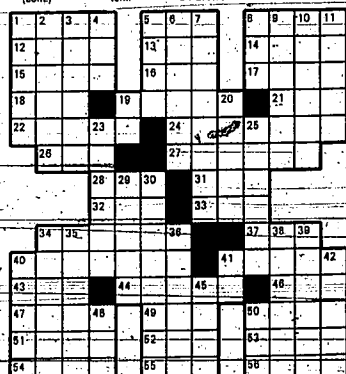

Helen Keller once said that if nature could restore one of her two missing senses, she would prefer to hear rather than to see.

POCATELLO — The U.S. Department of Agriculture will hold a public hearing April 28 in Pocatello to consider a proposed amendment to the Idaho-Eastern Oregon potato marketing order.

The amendment would increase the committee's reserve funds for operating expenses, lengthen the term of office served by members of the Idaho-Eastern Oregon Potato Committee and a public member to that committee.

The hearing is to consider amending the federal marketing order regulating the handling of potato grown in Idaho and Malheur County, Ore., will begin at 9 a.m. in the Bannock County Court House, Fifth and Center Streets, Pocatello.

Allan Henry, field representative with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) in Portland, Ore., said the proposed amendment would:

- (1) Add a public member to serve with the eight potato producers and handlers who now make up the Idaho-Eastern Oregon Potato Committee which locally administers the marketing order;
- (2) Increase the committee member's term of office from one year to two years; and
- (3) Increase the amount authorized in the operating reserve from half of a fiscal period's budgeted expenses to about one full fiscal period expenses.

Other minor changes will also be considered. The amendment was proposed by the Idaho-Eastern Oregon Potato Committee, which recommends to USDA regulations to apply under the marketing order program.

At the hearing, Henry explained, anyone may present evidence for or against the proposals or suggest modifications of them. Afterwards, USDA will issue a recommended decision based on the evidence received.

Anyone interested may then submit written comments or exceptions to the proposals before USDA issues a final decision. If the decision favors adopting the amendment, the amended order would have to be approved by at least two-thirds of the growers voting, either by number or volume of production represented, to become effective.

After a six-year absence of open class dairy animals at the fair, Shouse said, because of requests by dairymen the fair board decided to again have dairy classes.

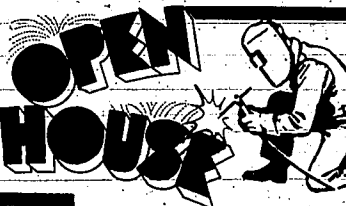

Dairy show returns

FILER — Local dairymen have shown enthusiasm about a dairy show at the Twin Falls County Fair so this year's fair will host a Holstein breed show, according to Tom Shouse, secretary-manager.

After a six-year absence of open class dairy animals at the fair, Shouse said, because of requests by dairymen the fair board decided to again have dairy classes.

The Holstein breed show will include eight age groups with a one group entry. Entries will be for females only this year, starting with the junior calf, calving after Jan. 1, 1977, to the 5-year-old cow or older.

More information may be acquired by contacting the fair office, Shouse said. Themes for the 1977 Twin Falls County Fair and Rodeo will be "Our Greatest Assets," fair officials said.

Insurance plan reopened

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland today reopened the federal crop insurance program to virtually all farmers in nine drought-stricken Midwest states and launched a liberal emergency drought credit program in 28 states.

The new credit program, ordered by President Carter, will enable some farmers to get emergency loans immediately instead of waiting until late summer or fall for calculation of their losses.

Carter has set aside $100 million for the drought credit loans, officials said.

Bergland was able to reopen the crop insurance program because improved moisture conditions in the affected states have brightened chances for 1977 harvests and reduced the risk of writing insurance policies, according to Agriculture Department officials.

They said they did not have immediately available a breakdown of the more than 350 counties affected. But they said all previously "closed" counties were now fully open in Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and Nebraska, and all but 12 counties were open in Kansas.

Department officials last fall had closed the crop insurance program to new applicants in many drought areas, leaving policies available only to farmers who previously carried the coverage.

Last week, Bergland reopened the program to new applicants in most affected areas on barley, oats, sugarbeets and a number of other crops. Today, he broadened the order to offer policies on corn, soybeans, grain sorghums and sunflowers.

In a companion move, Bergland announced he was activating liberalized terms ordered by Carter for his department's drought emergency loan program, which is currently available in 64 counties in 28 states for cases where drought losses are 20 per cent or more of normal production.

The states are Alabama,

Arkansas, California, Colorado, Delaware, Georgia, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Under the new loan terms, farmers can get drought loans from the Farmers Home Administration immediately if the drought has prevented planting of crops.

Under previous regulations, officials could not calculate drought losses until the end of the crop season.

Aide named

BOISE (UPI) — L. Ray Peterson has been named acting state director of the Farmers Home Administration, the U.S. Department of Agriculture said today.

Peterson, the former chief of the business and industry division in the state office, replaces Willard D. Stevenson who was transferred to the Virgin Islands.

A permanent state director will be named after President Carter's nominee for agency administrator is confirmed.

WL-309 ALFALFA

More and more growers are planting WL-309 and proving that it's the variety that delivers high yields and long stand persistence. It is best adapted for Range areas and has commercially proved its performance with top quality, high tonnage hay. WL-309 has fast recovery and regrowth, superior winter hardiness, and outstanding resistance to Bacterial Wilt, Pea Aphid and Spotted Alfalfa Aphid. It is noted for its exceptional leafiness all the way down slender stems and its long stand life. WL-309 gives you these genetic benefits. Plant it this year!

WL-318 ALFALFA

Plant the great new superior replacement for Lahontan, higher yielding WL-318! Proven to consistently outyield Lahontan, WL-318 has Phytophthora Root Rot resistance, Stem Nematode tolerance, fast recovery, greater axillary branching, multiple insect and disease resistance, and long stand persistence. A proven, outstanding variety!

Want to do your part for Energy and Water Conservation?

ONE FLOW CONTROL UNDER EACH SPRINKLER CAN SAVE 10% TO 20% OF THE WATER YOU NOW PUMP!

WHEN YOU PUMP LESS WATER, YOU USE LESS ENERGY!

Just by inserting a flow control, you can water your crops with more uniformity and control water flow on uneven terrain.

TWO SIMPLE WAYS TO DO IT!

Convert Existing Systems

Sprinklers with built-in flow control.

HOW IT WORKS

The Flow Control is a simple, self-cleaning device designed to deliver a constant volume of water from any outlet whether the pressure is 15 psi or as high as 125 psi. The controlling mechanism consists of a flexible orifice that varies its area inversely with the pressure so that a constant flow rate is maintained. The diagram illustrates how a single orifice, for simplicity of explanation, changes shape to maintain a constant flow rate as the inlet pressure increases. We can supply you with a wide range of flow controls from 2 gallons per minute to 11.5 gallons per minute.

Land board OK's development plan

BOISE (UPI) — The State Land Board approved the Idaho Historical Society's development plan for the Old Penitentiary site in Boise and the society director said he expects its first commercial tenants this summer.

The board also voted to direct the Ada County highway district to develop an alternate traffic route past the prison that would bypass Warm Springs Ave.

Arthur Hart, director of the Idaho Historical Society, said presently some 2,000 visitors per month tour the grounds.

The board directed Hart to make a report on the progress of the development on a 30 to 90-day basis.

Hart said the buildings inside the guard walls will be preserved and restored in their present condition but auxiliary buildings will be developed commercially.

A restaurant is expected to be the first business venture undertaken at the site in the old guardhouse, Hart said.

He said the warden's house, bishop's house, and commissary probably will be leased for office space and novelty shops.

"We will rigidly see that nothing comes in that is inappropriate or honky-tonky," Hart said.

Plans for the surrounding acreage include possible hiking trails, campgrounds, tennis courts and recreation fields.

Hart said it took two and one-half years to develop the master plan and delay that forced some developers to go elsewhere.

In other action the board approved an appraisal of the Idaho Penitentiary's Eagle Island State Farm to reflect its consideration of a 130-acre set aside for a regional park along the Boise River.

The 451-acre island, located about 15 miles west of Boise, was declared surplus by the Idaho Board of Corrections and up to $1 million in proceeds from its future sale was appropriated by the Idaho Legislature for a housing complex at the new penitentiary site.

Members of the Ada County and Boise City Joint Greenbelt Committee asked the board to retain 130 acres of river frontage for open, public space.

Rupert supports ISU traffic study

RUPERT — The Rupert City Council Monday approved a formal application for funding of a traffic safety study to be conducted by personnel at Idaho State University.

The study will be funded under a national pilot program involving four counties and four cities in the Magic Valley. Rupert is the only city in the project designated as not being a "high-traffic-injury-and-fatality city."

The "other cities" in the program are Burley, Twin Falls and Jerome. The Highway Safety Management System plan lists, Cassia, Minidoka, Twin Falls and Jerome counties as being "disproportionately involved in traffic injuries and deaths."

The council agreed to pay $17,920 to ISU for the traffic safety study, fully reimbursable from federal funds through the Idaho Traffic Safety Commission.

Mayor Wendell Johnson was authorized to forward the application and service agreement to the traffic safety commission. Johnson said the commission has reviewed the proposed agreement and will approve it upon receipt of the application.

Councilman W.E. "Bill" Whitton questioned the need for further traffic studies, particularly since the city only a year ago completed an engineering traffic study under state funding.

"I could not vote for it if it obligated us for the future," Whitton said. But said he would support it if any city could be decided on a "case by case basis."

Johnson assured him that the only cost to the city would be on those traffic safety recommendations the council decides to implement. He said any safety measures implemented in fiscal 1978 would be 100 per cent funded by the federal government.

The pilot program calls for two-thirds funding federally in fiscal 1979 and one-third in 1980.

"That's why our taxes are so high always," Whitton commented. "Every little thing that comes along, we all grab onto it."

Whitton asked what the city has done to follow up on the engineering study recently completed.

City Engineer Don Courtright said the city is "working on" elimination of tree hazards at 27 intersections. He has received a $14,000 grant for painting and striping city streets and obtained $4,000 for additional lighting within the city.

Namath clears waivers

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Jets announced Tuesday that quarterback Joe Namath had cleared waivers from 10 other 27 National Football League clubs and that he now is officially a free agent.

A Jets' spokesman said the club would not reclaim Namath at the 4 p.m. EST deadline Tuesday and that he is free to make his own deal.

Namath, one of the glamour names in pro football for more than a decade, was put on waivers by the Jets on April 1. Jet management had to decide on that date whether to waive Namath or pick up his contract for another season.

Namath, through his New York-based attorney, Jim Walsh, is expected to continue negotiations with the Los Angeles Rams. The Rams have expressed interest in Namath and he has indicated that he wishes to continue his career only in Los Angeles.

Race official optimistic

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The chairman of the Maryland Racing Commission said Tuesday he was optimistic that the track worker's strike will be settled in time for the running of the 102nd Preakness Stakes.

J. Newton Brewer Jr. emerged from a closed meeting with representatives of management of labor and said he thought a settlement would be reached by next week, although he would not say why.

Brewer refused to comment on the meeting. He said he had encouraged both sides to resume negotiating.

The meeting with Brewer, Alvin Akman, president of the striking union, and negotiators for Bowie, Laurel and Pimlico tracks took place after a public meeting of the Maryland Racing Commission. The meeting had been called by Brewer to discuss the strike.

The commission has the authority to allow the tracks to increase admission fees and other fees. Such a move could allow the tracks to meet union demands without suffering severe revenue losses. Brewer would not say if the commission is considering such action.

Shorter heads field

MEDFORD, Ore. (UPI) — Olympic distance runner Frank Shorter will head a field of 700 runners in a 13-mile mini-marathon race Saturday in conjunction with the Medford Pear Blossom Parade, then ride as grand marshal of the parade. The race is scheduled to be a parade grand marshal and run in the race. It sponsors make a donation to the Steve Prefontaine Memorial Scholarship Fund at the University of Oregon. Shorter was a close friend of the late Oregon track star, who died in an automobile crash in the spring of 1975, shortly after he had given Shorter a ride to a mutual friend's home following a track meet in Eugene.

The race is being sponsored by the Medford Visitors and Convention Bureau. In addition to Shorter, another former Olympian, Jim Anderson of Eugene, who won the Boston Marathon in 1972, and Jim Nuccio of Corte Madera, Calif., are top runners in the race. Nuccio, formerly of the University of Portland, holds the one-hour record of 60 minutes flat for running 12 miles and 372 yards.

Redskins sign pair

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Washington Redskins belatedly need Tuesday the signing of two castoffs from the New York Jets — quarterback Brian Dawkins and defensive end Jerry Brooks.

Club spokesman said Coach George Allen signed the two as free agents several days ago but did not notify the team's public relations office.

Dawkins, a 30-year-old Yale graduate, was dropped by the Patriots in 1974. Brooks was a sixth-round New England draft choice a year ago but was released in training camp.

Series resumes

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The University of Cincinnati-Miami University football rivalry, one of a Thanksgiving Day tradition, will once again be played on Thanksgiving afternoon this year, UCI officials announced Tuesday.

The game, originally scheduled Saturday, Nov. 26, on the Miami campus in Oxford, has been rescheduled for 1:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 24, Thanksgiving Day, at UCI's Nippert Stadium. In the exchange of dates, UC will play at Miami in both 1978 and 1979.

"I've heard about those marvelous Thanksgiving games between UC and Miami with all the festive atmosphere," said UC President Warren Bennis. "I hope the people from both schools, will fill Nippert Stadium to overflowing (this Thanksgiving)."

The annual UC-Miami matchup is the oldest collegiate football rivalry west of the Allegheny Mountains, dating back to 1889.

Although once traditionally played on Thanksgiving, in recent years the game has been played on a Saturday.

Royals sharpen eye

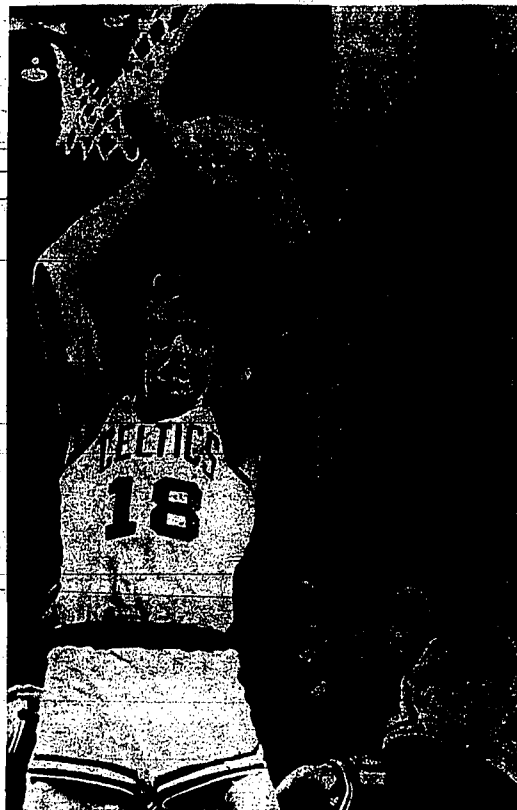

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Kansas City Royals spent their off day Tuesday taking batting practice ... as if they really needed it.

The Royals are one of three unbeaten teams left in the American League through the season's first seven days and have managed it with an awesome offensive arsenal which has produced 48 hits and 33 runs in four games. "We hit good last year, until late in the season," said KC Manager Whitey Herzog. "We're just a good hitting ball club. And if John (Mayberry) can come back with a good year and (Amos) Ots can have another year like he had last year ..."

Herzog did not continue but it was obvious he likes his team's chances for a second straight American League West title.

One for Boston

CENTER Dave Cowens (18) of Boston takes a rebound away from Spurs' Larry Kenon during their playoff game in Boston Tuesday night. Celtics won the opener 104-94. (UPI)

Scott sparks Celts past Spurs 104-94

BOSTON (UPI) — Charlie Scott, playing his best game since returning from a broken left forearm, scored seven straight points early in the fourth quarter. The slender North Carolina graduate scored on a driving layup, then hit a far away jumper and converted the subsequent free throw and followed with another basket — all in one minute stand — to put Boston ahead to stay at 86-73.

Scott finished with 13 of his 19 points in the fourth quarter. Backcourt mate Jo Jo White led all scorers with 24 points, 12 in the final period. The Spurs had trailed by 14 points, 65-51, midway through the third period, but outscored Boston 18-6 to pull within two points, at 71-69 late in the third period. But Boston scored six straight points to lead 77-69 less than one minute into the final quarter.

Scott and White took over the Boston offense from that point.

George Gervin and Larry Kenon had 20 points apiece for the Spurs, making their first NBA playoff appearance after moving over from the defunct American Basketball Association this season.

BOSTON (UPI) — Four striking National Basketball Association referees picketed outside Boston Garden Tuesday prior to the start of the first playoff game between the Boston Celtics and San Antonio Spurs.

Manny Sokol, Lee Jones, Ed Rush and Walt Roney paraded in front of the officials' entrance from 6:15 until 6:45 p.m., before they were moved to a side entrance by a Garden security officer.

Inside, veteran Richie Powers — one of only two referees ignoring the 24-man boycott — officiated along with Eastern League referee Joe Crawford.

Seconds later, he motioned to the bullpen for a change of pitchers.

"The guy in the bar couldn't believe what he was seeing on the screen,"

"Thanks, Mr. Wrigley," he said, suddenly sobering. "That's what I call action."

Phil Wrigley, who owned the Chicago Cubs for 30 years and died Tuesday at the age of 62, operated his club completely differently than any other man in baseball.

He never went to the ball park to see his team play, preferring to watch it on TV. That didn't mean he wasn't interested in the Cubs because he was, and vitally so. He firmly believed baseball was a day game and should be played in the sunlight, so he was the only owner never to install lights in his ball park. He seldom spoke personally with any of his ball players, but he had a soft spot in his heart for all of them.

"Essentially, I think he was a shy man and that he always wanted to keep a low profile," says Don Kessinger, who played shortstop with the Cubs 11 years and now is with the Cardinals. Speaking of his former employer before Tuesday's game with the Mets, Kessinger had

Big Game hearings set in TF, Burley

TEROME — The Idaho Department of Fish and Game will hold public hearings on the proposed 1977 big game seasons for Region four.

The meetings are set for the Ramada Inn in Burley at 7:30 p.m. April 14 and in Room 117, Shields' Building, College of Southern Idaho, in Twin Falls on April 15, at 7:30 p.m.

The proposed closing dates, number of permits, and five-year plans will be discussed to obtain public input. Opening dates for big game seasons were set last January by the Fish and Game Commission.

Department proposals call for about the same seasons as last year with reductions in the number of elk permits in Unit 43 and a new late season bow hunt in Unit 55 for deer.

Gary Will, Regional Game Manager, states the five-year plan calls for an anticipated increase of ten percent in Region four deer permits by 1980 and a 38 percent increase by 1985. He feels the present season recommendations will help to obtain this goal but emphasized it will also take considerable habitat manipulation on BLM and U.S. Forest Service lands to reach this objective.

Long range plans for elk include a 10 percent increase by 1980 and a 50 percent jump by 1985. All six northern units in Region four will be managed for high yield to provide maximum hunter opportunity.

Detroit overhauls cold Golden State

OAKLAND (UPI) — Bob Lanier, Kevin Porter, and Howard Porter each scored four points in the final six minutes to give the Detroit Pistons a 95-90 victory over the Golden State Warriors in the opening game of their NBA playoff Tuesday night.

The Warriors led 90-83 with a little more than six minutes to play and were unable to score for the remainder of the game.

Kevin Porter and Howard Porter each hit a field goal to make it 90-87 with 4:40 to go and Kevin Porter and Lanier each scored field goals to put Detroit on top 91-90 with 4:20 remaining.

Another basket by Lanier with 1:40 left clinched the victory for the Pistons. Kevin Porter hit another field goal at the final buzzer. The victory gave the Pistons a 1-0 lead in the best-of-three series, which moves to Detroit for the second game Thursday night.

The Warriors led by 18 points — 54-36 — in the second quarter, but Detroit battled back and trailed only 73-73 going into the final period.

Lanier was high for the Pistons with 28 points, 18 in the first half. Eric Money had 19, including 10 in the second half.

Rick Barry was high for the Warriors with 31 points, 21 of them in the first half. He missed five minutes in the second quarter with a slight knee injury, but was able to return to play.

Lucas guns Blazers past Bulls 96-83

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Maurice Lucas scored 23 points on 14 of 17 shooting from the field as the Portland Trail Blazers defeated the Chicago Bulls 96-83 in the first game of their best-of-three NBA playoff series.

Lucas was playing on a gimpy left leg but that didn't bother his shooting eye as he connected on 10 straight shots and 11 of 12 in a stretch from late in the second quarter into the fourth period.

Chicago got off to a 10-point first quarter deficit as Dave Twardzik, smallest man on the court, had a hot hand with nine points to put Portland up 23-19 after one period. Twardzik continued to dart in and out for five more points in a 14-point first half performance as Portland maintained its 10-point edge at the half, 52-42.

Bill Walton and Lucas played Artis Gilmore and Mickey Johnson to a standstill on the boards and the Bulls hit 16 of 17 free throws to stay close in the first half.

Walton and Johnson with 14 points, Johnson with 17 and rookie Scott May with 15 were high for Chicago. Gilmore had 14 rebounds in leading the Bulls to a 54-39 edge on the boards. Lucas had four blocked shots, seven rebounds and four assists.

Substitute referees Mike Eggers, who works Pacific 8 Conference junior varsity games, and AAU official Dave Wilson worked the game while regular referees were on strike. There was no picket at the Portland Coliseum as there was outside the game in Boston.

The series switches to Chicago Friday and a third game, if necessary, will be played in Portland Sunday afternoon.

Striking refs picket NBA tilt

Other striking referees picketed outside NBA buildings where playoff games were being held. The striking referees carried signs that read, "NBA unfair to labor."

"I will give up $7,000 in playoff money so I can get something out of it," said Sokol. "Twelve years ago when I came into the league, I never thought I'd see myself on strike."

"But now you feel all ball players are getting all this kind of money, and we're second-class citizens. They're negotiating with us like we're nobody."

Pas filling into Boston Garden appeared mostly amused by the four sign-carrying referees. Several made derisive remarks. Some wished them luck. But most just ignored them.

"I really haven't noticed the fans one way or another," said Rush. "But you know we're not used to standing ovations anyway."

Rush said the most important of the referees' demands was that they be treated as a bargaining unit.

"There is unanimity here," said Rush. "Twenty-four of 26 officials belong to the association and so far every vote has been 24-0. We are not going to negotiate if we cannot negotiate as a bargaining unit."

Wrigley had soft spot for his players

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Phil Wrigley had a habit of answering the phone himself because he always wanted to hear firsthand what the so-called man in the street had to say about his chewing gum or his ball club, and on this particular day the guy on the other end was demanding action, not tomorrow or the day after, but right now.

He was watching one of the Cubs' pitchers taking his lumps over TV in a Chicago bar and from the sound of his voice, it was obvious he had drunk his lunch. It was immediately clear to Phil Wrigley, also watching the game on TV in his own downtown office, that the guy had more than merely two or three.

"For crissakes, Wrigley, when you gonna get that lamburger outta there?" the caller started right in. "He's no pitcher. He's gettin' bombed out there, can't you see that for yourself?"

Wrigley, with his eyes on the tube, was about to answer, when Leo Durocher, then the Cubs' manager, came bouncing out of the dugout,

"I've never met a fairer man than he was. I remember asking John Holland, the general manager, whether I could speak with Mr. Wrigley at the end of 1975 when I knew I was going to be traded. He said, 'Sure, go ahead.'"

I spoke with him and thanked him for all his kindness to me through the years. He said he considered me a gentleman, which I took as a tremendous compliment, and then he told me I didn't have to be traded if I didn't want to be. But I told him it was probably time for the organization and for me. Fellows who had been with him a long time, players like Ernie Banks, Billie Williams and Ron Santo, told me if you were fair with him, he'd be the same way with you, and that was how I found him. A good, fair man."

Blake Cullen, assistant to National League President Club Feeney now, also was with the Cubs 11 years, first as assistant general manager to John Holland. He shares Don Kessinger's feelings for Phil Wrigley.

"I liked him," says Cullen. "You never felt uncomfortable being around him. For all his accomplishments and his wealth, he was a fan of those big God-presences. Each year, a week or so after the season was over, he always made it a point to get together with his managers, coaches, John Holland and myself, and he'd try to tell baseball stories."

"His favorite one was about Hack Wilson when he played for the Cubs. Mr. Wrigley liked to tell about how Wilson, scrapping the grass with his spikes in right field one day, suddenly lit up and began chiseling what he thought was a live going over his head."

"Golly it wasn't a ball he was chasing. It was a pignon, and it flew right out of the ballpark. Charlie Grimm, playing first base that day, came charging out toward Wilson, wondering what in the world he was doing."

"That was the longest ball I ever saw hit," Wilson said to Grimm the way Mr. Wrigley told the story."

"Why, you foolish so-and-so, the pitcher hasn't even thrown the ball yet. That was no live drive, that was a pignon you were chasing," Mr. Wrigley said that was a true story."

Baseball world praises Wrigley

CHICAGO (UPI) — Tributes to Chicago Cubs owner Philip K. Wrigley came from sports figures across the nation after his death early Tuesday.

Wrigley "loved the game as passionately as anyone in it," said Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn in New York.

"Phil was never afraid to be different. He had his own perceptions and the courage to follow them," Baseball history says in a tribute.

Bill Veck, Chicago White Sox president who got his start as a man of all duties in Wrigley Field, said, "I think sports and baseball in particular has lost probably the last true sportsman."

"He was a very honorable man, a very kind man. I know I worked for him for many years. We didn't always agree, but he allowed people the right to disagree. He was the first to recognize the comfort of the fan was important."

"Remember I helped design chairs which were more comfortable in the process we lost maybe 15 per cent of capacity. He felt very strongly that in the overall picture the fan was more important than the capacity."

M. Donald Grant, head of the New York Mets, declared Wrigley "was a great lover of the game and obviously in it for the sport."

Charles O. Finley of the Oakland A's called Wrigley "never had a better friend. All the sports will miss his death."

French championships this year, I've already been accepted for the French and Italian Opens.

"If it turns out this requirement by the 1977 U.S. Open Committee jeopardizes my acceptance for the European tournaments I've already been accepted for, I will instruct my attorney, Gregson Bautzer, of Los Angeles, to institute a personal damage suit on the issue of personal discrimination."

Mr. Bautzer is free to make any statement on this matter.

Transsexual plans discrimination suit

PORT WASHINGTON, N.Y. (UPI) — Transsexual Dr. Renee Richards has threatened to sue the United States Tennis Association for damages on the issue of what she terms "personal discrimination" after learning Tuesday night she will be required to take an Olympic sex test which she passed two weeks ago to qualify for the 1977 Open Championships in 1977.

Dr. Richards, competing in the Lionel Cup $20,000 Women's Tournament, said she learned the U.S. Open Championship Committee had voted Monday and that its decision could jeopardize her participation in the French, Italian and Wimbledon championships.

"She is angry, she said, because she had passed this test, known as the Barr Body test just two weeks ago in Little Rock, Ark. and had forwarded the findings to the European Tournament Committee."

It was learned that the USTA will require women participants of the U.S. Open to take the test at the Institute of Sports Medicine at Lenox Hill Hospital in New York City.

"I have recently learned the USTA will require I take another Barr Body Test before being accepted for the 1977 U.S. Open," Dr. Richards said. "This test is not being required of those girls who took the Barr Body test for the 1976 Open."

"I took the test in exactly the same fashion as the girls took it before the 1976 Open. In spite of the fact I took it under more rigid control, I am now being asked to take it again. I consider this discrimination against me."

In terms of my eligibility for the 1977 U.S. Open, I also consider it a form of jeopardy concerning my participation at Wimbledon, Italian and

Canadiens see short series

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Montreal Canadiens last year swept to their 19th Stanley Cup, only 12 series games and this season the experts think they might wrap it up in 12.

The St. Louis Blues, who face Montreal Wednesday night in the second game of the best-of-seven quarter-final series, are worried.

Team captain Gary Unger, visibly upset at the 7-2 defeat by Montreal in the opener Monday, had a warning for his teammates.

"We'll have to skate with them Wednesday night because Montreal plays the game of hockey the way it's supposed to be played," the veteran forward said.

IOC chief collapses

DUBLIN (UPI) — Lord Killanin, President of the International Olympic Committee, was placed in an intensive care unit Tuesday with a mild heart attack suffered at a race meeting near Dublin.

Killanin, 62, had just witnessed one of his sons win the main race of the day at the Fairhouse course. The IOC president was rushed to St. Vincent's Hospital, a mile from the Dublin city center, and placed under constant supervision.

Hospital spokesman Dr. Charles Melgill said, "Lord Killanin suffered a mild heart attack, and is now comfortable."

Abbott happy to be away from Finley

SEATTLE (UPI) — Glenn Abbott, who pitched for the Oakland A's last season, says he's happy he's no longer working for Charlie Finley.

"It's almost the complete opposite here," said Abbott of the Seattle Mariners, who picked him off the Oakland roster in the expansion draft.

"I'm really glad to get out of that organization," he said. "I didn't care whether they had a shot at the world championship or not."

"Charlie Finley ran the whole show, almost to right on the field. He was in contact with the club every day by phone and was in the clubhouse every day when we played in Chicago" where Finley was an office.

Abbott, who had a 2-4 record for the A's last year, expressed sympathy for Vida Blue, who is entangled with Finley in an early season dispute.

"Blue may have almost been tricked into signing," the Seattle pitcher said. "Finley says one thing and does another. He was fairly decent for me contractwise, but that's all I can say on his behalf."

Horton accepts trade to Texas

TORONTO (UPI) — "I guess it's sort of a sad moment, leaving the Tigers."

But I'm also looking forward to going to Texas."

Horton, who has played for the Tigers for the last 14 years, is entitled to reject the trade for an as yet unnamed player. He said he was waiting to talk to his agent, Charlie Dye, before making his decision.

"I'm 33 years old but I think part of the Tigers—my heart is there in Detroit," Horton said. "But I'm also looking forward to going to Texas."

Rebuilt Athletics collect fourth win in five games

OAKLAND (UPI) — Dick Allen and Wayne Gross-hitters, Rob Piccoli made use line defense plays and Stan Balisen and Dave Glust combined on a five-hitter Tuesday while leading the Oakland A's to a 6-2 victory over the California Angels.

It was Oakland's second straight win over California and the rebuilt A's fourth victory in five games this season.

Allen hit a two-run homer, his first for Oakland, and Gross had a solo shot in the first inning when the A's scored five runs and chased starter Gary Ross.

Larry Lints reached on an error with one out in the first, stole second and scored on a double by Mitchell Page, who also doubled home a run in the ninth.

Orlones edge Bruns in 9th
MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Rick Dempsey singled home the game's only run in the ninth inning to disappoint a record-setting crowd of 55,100 Milwaukee fans Tuesday and give the Baltimore Orioles a 1-0 victory over the Brewers behind the two-hit pitching of Jim Palmer.

It was the Orioles' first win of the season.

Mets pin Cards loss on Cards
NEW YORK (UPI) — Tom Seaver, showing midseason form in sunny 89-degree weather, cooled off the sizzling St. Louis bats with a five-hitter and singled home two runs Tuesday to spark the New York Mets to a home-opening 4-0 victory over the Cardinals.

John Milner and John Stearns supported Seaver with solo homers as the Mets stretched their record to 3-1 and handed the Cardinals their first loss after three victories.

Tigers tip Jays for first win
TORONTO (UPI) — Rookie Steve Kemp hit a three-run homer, his first as a major leaguer, to support the fourth pitching of Dave Roberts Tuesday and help the Detroit Tigers to their first victory of the 1977 season, a 6-2 decision over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Pirates rally past Montreal
PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Renaldo Stennett's double scored Dave Parker from second with one out in the ninth inning Tuesday to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 2-1 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Stennett's game-winning hit came after Parker led off the ninth with a single and moved to second on Bill Robinson's sacrifice. Loser Willie McEnaney then intentionally walked Phil Garner to get to Stennett, who doubled to the right centerfield fence.

Astros defeat Redlegs again
HOUSTON (UPI) — The Houston Astros scored three runs in the first inning Tuesday night and J.R. Richard combined with Ken Forsch on an eight-hitter to stop Cincinnati 4-3, for the Astros' second straight victory over the Reds.

Twins slip past Mariners
SEATTLE (UPI) — Craig Kusick and Lyman Bostock hit run-scoring doubles in the eighth inning Tuesday night to give the Minnesota Twins a 3-2 victory over the Seattle Mariners.

LA outslugs Atlanta 14-10
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Steve Garvey and Steve Yager highlighted slug rallies in the first and fifth innings that offset Jeff Burroughs' grand slam homer and brought the Los Angeles Dodgers a 14-10 victory over the Atlanta Braves Tuesday night.

Padres win for record crowd
SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Doug Rader's three-run homer in the fourth inning enabled the San Diego Padres to defeat the San Francisco Giants 4-3 Tuesday night in the Padres' home opener before 46,375 — the largest opening night crowd in San Diego history.

It was the first win of the year for Randy Jones, the 1976 Cy Young Award winner who dropped a decision to Cincinnati last Wednesday in the season's inaugural.

MV couples observe 50th year

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Three Magic Valley couples, all members of the Idaho Old Time Fiddlers Association, observing their 50th wedding anniversaries Saturday, said they wouldn't make many changes if they were to live the 50 years over again.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bethke, Burley, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond May, Rupert, and Mr. and Mrs. James Page, Twin Falls, all with wedding anniversaries within the past week or two, were honored with a party Saturday in Twin Falls by the Idaho Old Time Fiddlers Association.

As might be expected there was plenty of old time music throughout the afternoon. Edna Ward, association member, made a gold and white, three-tiered wedding cake and other members contributed coffee, punch, ice cream and mints.

The three husbands of 50 years all play fiddles with the organization and all joined in providing entertainment during the afternoon. About 50 couples attended the open house event.

Jim and Retta Page were married 50 years ago in American Falls. He has worked as an electrical contractor most of his life. He has still found time for fiddling and photography, his favorite hobbies. In addition, he is a pilot and although he sold his plane some time ago, still flies.

"However, I haven't been off the ground for six months," he said.

Page, who couldn't recall his exact wedding date, admitted he is the perfect husband. Mrs. Page, who conducts knitting classes in addition to keeping her husband well fed and cared for, said she couldn't recall a single bad habit he has which has annoyed her over the past 50 years.

Mr. and Mrs. May were married April 12, 1927, in Rupert. May still farms, having spent the past 50 years on farms in the area. He was born in Kansas and his wife was born in Hagerman.

As for her husband's bad habits, Florence May says they are very few, but he does stick too close to the farm and takes little time out for even a "trip around Magic Valley."

'I'll have to admit she is a great person, but then she has a wonderful husband, too.'

May says his wife's only bad habit is that she is "always wanting me to take her somewhere when I'm busy on the farm."

Bill and Kate Bethke were married March 11, 1927, and like the Pages, were married in American Falls. The wedding took place on the ranch home of Mrs. Bethke's parents. She was born in Oregon but came to Idaho as a small girl. Bethke was born in Walla Walla.

About the only annoying habit he has, Mrs. Bethke says, is that he "is forever playing that fiddle."

Bethke thinks living with him for 50 years is proof she has been a considerate mate.

"I'll have to admit she is a great person, but then she has a wonderful husband, too," he said.

Once not enough

I really want to; but my friends are giving me a lot of static. They say I'm just asking for trouble if I start up with John again. He also admitted that the name he gave me was not his real name. I'm so mixed up, Abby. Should I try to forget his past and give him another chance? Sign me...

SOFTY

DEAR SOFTY: I think you're probably too "SOFT" for your own good. I agree with your friends.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think about dying much? CURIOUS IN RUTLAND

DEAR CURIOUS: No. It's the last thing I want to do.

DEAR ABBY: My 30-year-old son, Rick, is my problem. He's had two unsuccessful marriages and a third one is now on the rocks.

His first wife keeps their two children which he supports. His second wife keeps the next two, which he also supports. His third wife won't let him raise dogs, so the court awarded him custody of their 24-year-old twin girls and a baby boy not quite a year old.

By the time Rick pays out all this support money he's too broke to hire help to care for the three youngest, so he's counting on me to help him.

I am 52, have rheumatoid arthritis, diabetes and high blood pressure. My husband is an invalid and can't work. What can I do? On top of all this, Rick has a new girlfriend and she sure looks pregnant to me. What do you advise? TIRED IN ST. JO

DEAR TIRED: Although your son appears to have made his own trouble (three broken marriages and seven children at age 30 is nothing to brag about), he should ask for court modification of his first two support agreements.

If Rick can obtain court relief on support of his first four children, leaving enough money to support the three he now has—that's it. If he cannot and doesn't have enough money for all of the children, a foster home (or homes) for the teeny bitches is his only solution.

And in the obvious absence of SELF control, someone should tell Rick about BIRTH control.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

your health

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB —

I am a 17-year-old male, 5 feet 7 and weigh 137 pounds.

My problem is that I am constantly tired. During summer I sleep an average of 10 to 11 hours per day, but during the school year I sleep only six to seven.

I work two nights a week until midnight or later. I stay away from all junk food and eat only fresh fruits, vegetables and lean meats.

My heart rate is 98 to 108 a minute and I have started jogging to lower it. My hemoglobin is above average. Please tell me what is wrong and how I can feel less tired.

DEAR READER —

Fatigue is a symptom of many things. It can be a sign of overwork, lack of sleep, psychological problems, or illnesses such as anemia, low thyroid function, poor nutrition, tuberculosis, cancer or any number of diseases.

Since you are not complaining of losing weight, have no other complaints and don't have anemia, I doubt you have a serious illness. Nevertheless, the first requirement to solving the cause of fatigue is a careful medical examination. You could have diabetes and there is no way you would know this without tests of your blood sugar.

The second step, if you pass your medical examination with no abnormal findings, is to look to your lifestyle. If you smoke, stop. A fitness program is a good idea. Perhaps a full eight hours of sleep a night is useful and necessary for you to feel your best.

Look at your social life and goals. Everyone needs something to look forward to. It is amazing how much energy a person will have if he suddenly finds out he is going on a trip he wanted to make or to do something else that really interests him.

Psychological factors are closely related to your sense of energy and well being. Goals are part of this. Lack of interest in social aspects of life, lack of interest in others and non-involvement are commonly symptoms of psychological problems — all of which can make you fatigued and withdrawn from normal activities.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 9-6, Fatigue, to give you a better understanding about its causes and how to handle it. Others who want more information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, Tx. 78202.

DEAR DR. LAMB —

Is corn oil margarine better since safflower margarine also contains coconut oil?

DEAR READER —

All of the margarines have some saturated fats in them. If they didn't they would be liquid. Both safflower oil margarines and corn oil margarines have had some of the fat converted to hydrogenated (saturated) fats. Your question suggests that you want a margarine low in saturated fat (coconut oil is over 80 per cent saturated fat) and high in polyunsaturated fat. The label of most margarines will tell you how much of each kind of fat it contains.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Here is another example of the value of thought at trick one. South didn't bother to do his thinking. He dropped his four of hearts under East's ace. East continued the suit. South played his 10.

West won with the queen and cleared the suit.

South entered dummy with the king of spades and won a club finesse. Then he laid down his ace of clubs since there was no way to get back to dummy for a second finesse. The king failed to drop and another notrump game had wound up one trick short.

Let's see what some real thought at trick one would have been.

The first thought would be that West surely would hold the queen of hearts. Hence, South was only going to get one heart trick.

The second thought would be that East held exactly three clubs to the king. After this thought, South would drop his king of hearts, not the four spot. Dummy's jack would be a sure entry and South would have his four club tricks.

MR. and MRS. JAMES ASH

60th anniversary open house slated

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. James A. Ash will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary Sunday at an open house at the home of Mrs. Fred Newberry at 203 Alexander St., Twin Falls, from 2 to 4 p.m.

James A. Ash was born at Seligman, Mo., on Aug. 8, 1893, and Emma Bridges was born at Wright, Iowa, on April 4, 1892.

The couple was married at Seligman on April 15, 1917, and moved to Idaho Sept. 12, 1936. The ten children born to Mr. and Mrs. Ash are: Mrs. Hazel Newberry and Karl and Tom Ash, all Twin Falls; Mrs. Mary Wood, Filer; John and Jimmie Ash, both Boise; Mrs. Nadine Harp, Curry; Roy Ash, Burley; George Ash, Homedale, and Billie L. Ash, Englewood, Colo.

The couple has 32 grandchildren, 54 great-grandchildren and 2 great-great-grandchildren.

All friends and acquaintances are invited to attend the open house. The couple requests no gifts.

Nancy Brock, John Foote wed in double ring rites

TWIN FALLS — Nancy Ann Brock and John Richard Foote were united in marriage in a double-ring ceremony March 25 at the Carillon in Twin Falls.

The chapel was decorated with candelabra, white mums set in a background of blue and blue ribbons with streamers.

The ceremony was conducted by Duane Knapp, Jerome.

Martin served as a groomsmen along with Frank Larson, Boise, and Fred Larson, Jerome.

James Brock, brother of the bride, and Clint Foote, brother of the groom, were candlelighters. Daniel Brock, brother of the bride, and Kurt Foote, brother of the groom, were ringbearers.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Brock, Twin Falls, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Dick Foote, Jerome.

Given in marriage by her mother and father, the bride wore a gown of light crepe. The bodice was lacy with white lace, the skirt was overlaid with white chiffon and the long chiffon sleeves were gathered to lace cuffs held with white pearl buttons.

Her train-length veil was held in place by a bow and white lace flowers accented with seed pearls.

She carried a bouquet of white roses and blue carnations accented with baby's breath.

Diane Murray, Twin Falls, was maid of honor and Kenneth Woodrow, Coy. Filer, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mitzi Young, Burley, and Lynet Brock, Twin Falls, sister of the bride.

Vocal music was provided by Dennis Bortz and Donna Knapp, duet. Donna also sang a solo. The other singers included Jim Palmer, Marcie Donner, Anita Rick, Greg Rogers, Judy Phillips and Richard Cox. They were under the direction of Ray Phillips.

The newlyweds were honored at a reception following the ceremony.

The three-tiered wedding cake was decorated with blue roses and sat on a white table decorated by blue candles and bows.

The cake was baked, decorated and served by Mrs. Kenneth Woodrow.

Guests were seated at quartet tables with blue satin and white lace tablecloths centered with crystal chandeliers holding flaming carnations.

Pat and Pam Woodrow, Mrs. J.O. Cox, Mrs. Lloyd Young, Debbie Cox and Mrs. Ed Bortz were reception attendants.

Mrs. Beau Williams, Carol Cox and Shawn Roseberry care for the gifts. Kathy Cox was guest book attendant.

A miscellaneous shower was given for the bride by Mrs. Woodrow, and Mrs. Bortz and Mrs. Gus Flowers.

The couple lives north of Jerome where the bride is a housewife and the bridegroom is farming with his father.

Rupert panel offers firms sewer 'credit'

RUPERT—The Rupert City Council Monday night agreed to offer credits to two industries in the city on industrial repayments in the $5.3 million Tagoon sewer treatment system now being constructed.

The council voted unanimously to allow the credit to Magic Valley Foods and Kraft Foods, although W.P. "Bill" Whitton said he did so "hesitantly."

The council also authorized forwarding of papers regarding contracts for renovation of the existing sewage plant and installation of pumping facilities to Environmental Protection Agency and state officials.

Mayor Wendell Johnson had called Monday's special meeting because, he said, the industrial contract was necessary to approval of the plant facility portion of the sewer project.

According to figures developed by Danny Fouladpour, consulting engineer with Hamilton and Voeller, Boise office, the credits would amount to about $2.274 per year for Magic Valley and $1.679 for Kraft, extending for the 30-year period of the repayment agreement.

The two industries must pay back 75 per cent of the sewer project share applicable to industry, Fouladpour estimated those figures as $622,158 for Magic Valley ($22,740 per year) and $503,822 for Kraft ($16,793 per year).

Fouladpour said half of that annual payment returns to the federal government while the other half goes to the city.

Of the share returned to the city, 80 per cent is dedicated for expansion or reconstruction of sewage facilities, and the other 20 per cent can be used as part of the city's general fund.

The $5.3 million which would have gone to the city's general fund is the portion which will be written off as a credit against the up-front payments made by the two industries at the start of the project.

Fouladpour estimated the annual repayments of the two industries as $20,466 for Magic Valley and $15,116 for Kraft after credits are given. He said the industries' share of the sewer project would not be affected, estimating the Magic Valley share as $91,000 and Kraft at $67,200.

The project is 75 per cent funded by EPA and 15 per cent funded by the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare.

The industrial payback requirement by EPA is a recent one. City Atty. William Goodman said Monday he believes the first industrial payback required in the Magic Valley area was in the Twin Falls sewage project.

Councilman Whitton originally challenged the crediting concept, saying the only reason the council was considering it was because Kraft and Magic Valley are big enterprises.

"What Rupert and the taxpayers are doing is bailing out the industry," Whitton claimed.

News of record

Twin Falls City Police

BURGULARY CHARGES—Gordon Lee Bjorn, 22, Kimberly and Jeffery Dee Woods, 19, Twin Falls, were arrested Sunday morning in connection with an attempted theft of an undisclosed amount of money from Volvo, Inc., 1290 Highland Ave. E., earlier that night, police said. Damage to the building was put at $150. Each man was being held in the county jail in lieu of $5,000.

VANDALISM—Robert Salinas, Twin Falls, told police someone jumped on the hood of a car and smashed a windshield to the car at the intersection of Sidney Street and Diamond Avenue early Monday morning. Damage was estimated at $150.

VANDALISM—Police reported two windows were broken at Krengel's Hardware, 210 Second Ave. S., Saturday night. Damage was estimated at $75.

Corder trial set May 16

TWIN FALLS—Sixth District Judge Arthur Oliver has set the trial of Twin Falls County Sheriff Paul Corder for 9 p.m. May 16 in Bannock County Courthouse, Pocatello.

Corder is charged with mishandling public funds. He is charged with failing to keep and turn over on a quarterly basis about $1,700 as is required by statute.

Records show the money was collected for use of sheriff's office copying machines.

Gem recreation plan meeting scheduled

TWIN FALLS—A public information meeting on the draft version of the 1977 Idaho Comprehensive Outdoor Recreation Plan will be held April 21 in Twin Falls.

The Idaho Dept. of Parks and Recreation has scheduled the meeting at 7:30 p.m. at the College of Southern Idaho Shields Building.

According to William Hagdon, chief of the parks department planning bureau, the plan covers all phases of outdoor recreation, charts present needs and desires, and estimates the cost of the future.

Hagdon says the plan is updated every five years as part of the Land and Water Conservation Fund which is distributed in Idaho by the parks and recreation department.

Hagdon says, "Areas covered by the plan include motorized and non-motorized trails, scenic rivers, minimum flows for recreation needs, financing outdoor recreation and urban and rural recreation."

President signs bill

WASHINGTON—(UPI)—President Carter today signed a bill that will force members of Congress to vote on future pay raises for themselves, as well as members of the Judiciary and executive branches.

The provision was attached to a measure extending federal supplemental, unemployment benefits through Oct. 31. Carter signed the bill without comment.

Recently, the members of both houses—authorized pay raises of about $13,000 a year simply by not rejecting the recommendation of a pay commission.

Buhl School Board members to open school building bids June 7

BUHL. — School board members in Buhl expect to open bids June 7 for construction of the new $2.5 million high school building.

A bond issue, approved in October, authorized construction of the building. Ed Peterson, CTA Architects, Boise, met with the board in the regular April board meeting Monday night to outline final building plans.

A schedule for bidding and construction, listed by Peterson and approved by the board, calls for a meeting the week of April 25 with the board to present final plans for approval. At that time, Peterson said, he will have a cost estimate on basic construction and several alternates the board will bid separately.

He said plans can be submitted to the Idaho Board of Education May 6 for approval there and with no problems will be available May 9 to prospective bidders. If the bids can be opened June 7, he said the contractor can be on the site and ready to begin work in early July.

Giving the contractor 13 months for construction, Peterson said, the new building should be finished and ready for acceptance by the school district by Aug. 1, 1979. Alternate plans will include a green house, paving of the parking lot and service driveways, on-site lighting and movable partitions.

Peterson told the board he feels there will be a number of bids as several contractors have already inquired about the project. He said with bids expected to be opened about mid-June on the new Twin Falls Junior High School, some out of state builders may be interested in bidding both projects, which he said will create some good competitive bidding.

Supt. Dan Mabe told the board the school is looking into the possibility of using coal heat in the new high school. He said in view of the fuel situation several heating methods are being considered.

"Unfortunately the coal system has made few advancements over the years and use of coal still involves the old method of carrying the coal to the fire, combining it with forced air, to produce soot and smoke. We are making inquiries as to available equipment that will eliminate this latter feature," he said.

Board members refused a request from residents of about 500 acres within the Buhl School District to transfer the Wendell district. The transfer would involve about 11 students, all of them now attending school in Wendell and hoping to eliminate tuition payments by annexing the 500 acres to the Wendell district. Board members turned down the request because of the bond issue which is based on a specific assessed valuation of the district.

In other business the board scheduled a work session for 6:30 p.m. tonight to inspect the new high school site for street, sewer, water, utilities and other services in connection with a list of requirements from the city for the construction site.

The board asked Mabe and high school Principal Dale Thiersberry to meet with the D and L Bus Co. to go over some changes the company is requesting in the transportation contract for the coming year.

Thiersberry reported on the summer migrant program, submitting the names of three teachers, three aides, a secretary, three recruiters, two cooks and a home school coordinator he has selected for the summer program.
